The idea for the theme of the 127th volume of the Razorback Yearbook came to me when I was perusing the school's archives while researching for a class paper. Looking at the maps, it struck me how much the campus had really grown. Many of the structures that I associate with campus were not on the map, even Mullins Library. It is incredible to behold the size of the University of Arkansas in 2023. "The Blueprint" stems from a love of the architecture on the Hill. As much as I love Old Main and all the school pride it stands for, I appreciate all of the rest of the buildings on campus that might not get the love they should. This book is an ode to our campus and the 'feel' of walking between building to building, from class to class, and being surrounded by stone and brick and grass and glass — all the natural components of the campus. The title also works as another nickname for the university. Since the state of Arkansas does not have NFL, NBA, or MLB teams, the Arkansas Razorbacks and their related sports events are the fan-favorite for many Arkansans. The university is interwoven into the heart and soul of the state: we are The Blueprint.

All headlines are in Bagnard and body text is Basic Grotesque. Bylines are in 8pt, body text is in 12pt, and the headlines are multiples of 12. The cover is a canvas material called Brillianta 4049. The softward used to create and organize the book is Adobe InDesign, Google Suite, and Microsoft OneDrive. Thanks to the hardwork and dedication of the editors, photographers, copywriters, graphic designers and Student Media staff, 1700 copies of the 127th volume of the Razorback were printed. The opening endsheet is based on a map of the campus originally published in the Catalogue of the University of Arkansas for 1906-1907. Special thanks to Amy Allen, Associate Librarian at Mullins, that assisted me in my research. The closing endsheet is based off the current map of the campus which can be found on www.campusmaps.uark.edu. Special thanks to our adviser Mike Brown, Director of Student Media Robyn Ledbetter, Student Media Business Manager Cheri Freeland, and Student Media Broadcast Engineer Sam Gibby. And last but not least, a huge thank you to my amazing editors, Madalyn Menke, Kana Matsukawa, Elizabeth Bunnell, Macie Ann Barnes, Micah Sam, Allie Thome, Sarah Wittenburg, Sydney Sengel, and Diana Malario.

TO SCHOOL

The start of the school year is filled with mixed emotions for students. Sophomore Amber Jared, who just finished her summer semester, weighed in on coming back to class already. "I wish I would have had a longer break," Jared said, "but I was excited to see everyone and for campus to become full again." Being a pre-med Biology major, as well as pursuing minors in French and Math, Jared has a jam-packed schedule this semester. She said her classes, including Intermediate French 1, Honors Organic Chemistry 1 and Transition to Advanced Math, keep her busy. Jared said she is excited for some courses more than others. "I'm really looking forward to Honors Psychology because that's what I'm also doing my research thesis in," Jared said. "I think I'm really gonna like Genetics [as well]." Jared said her most challenging class for the semester may be Honors Organic 1. "I think I have a good grasp right now, but I've heard that it gets pretty hard," Jared said. Jared joined Dr. Josiah Leong's psychology lab as a research assistant this semester. Dr. Leong's research lab is looking at the ABCD study, which is a long-term brain development study by the National Institute of Health. Specifically, "we're looking at the risk and reward center of the brain, and how adolescents respond as they age," Jared said. Jared said she plans to start working on her thesis this semester. "I'm particularly interested in if there's a difference between male and female adolescents, and how puberty might have an effect on that," Jared said. Outside of classes and her research lab, Jared is also a member of the Women in Medicine Club, Alpha Epsilon Delta, the Honors Ambassador program, and the Neuroscience Organization. "I'm trying to be more involved this semester," Jared said. Regarding the rest of the school year, Jared said she is feeling really excited. "The school year is already going by pretty fast," Jared said. "I just want to be able to soak it in and just enjoy everything."

Running Home

On August 19, the University of Arkansas campus burst with excitement as Panhellenic Bid Day unfolded at the Greek Theatre, marking the culmination of a week-long recruitment process filled with anticipation and sisterhood. The 11 Panhellenic chapters welcomed 1,962 members this year, celebrating a 95% retention rate. The recruitment process allows potential new members the opportunity to meet chapter members and discover what each sorority had to offer. Throughout the week, recruitment counselors, known as Gamma Chis, provided guidance and support to participants, addressing any concerns along the way. One of the most memorable aspects of Bid Day was the joy and enthusiasm shared by the PNMs and the chapter members. Kate Cheek, a sophomore Delta Delta Delta member, said that recruiting is even more fun than being a PNM. "Bid day is the best," Cheek said. "We spend so much time together, and everyone is just so excited to usher our new members home." Bid Day is also a culmination of the bonds formed during the recruitment process as new members run to their chosen homes. Ava Pendarvis, a Zeta Tau Alpha new member, described the atmosphere on Bid Day as a sense of purity and belonging. "Bid Day was about coming together and being loved so much that you were welcomed into a completely new family, no questions asked," Pendarvis said. Pendarvis said her journey leading her to Zeta felt like fate. "I had known throughout the week that I had a special connection with those girls, their hearts and their goals. Running into the house, jumping and screaming with absolute joy, was one of the best feelings of my life," Pendarvis said.

The memories created during recruitment week are treasured by every party involved, as young women embrace a sisterhood, form lifelong friendships and find a sense of belonging on campus. "Watching the girls I rushed run home was indescribable," Cheek said. "It is so special to get to be a part of bringing the future of our chapter home."

The Chi Omega Greek Theater opened to the public in June of 1930. The theater celebrates the founding chapter of Chi Omega here at the University of Arkansas. In 1980, in celebration of the 50th anniversary, the theater was rededicated to the Chi Omega sorority after a series of renovations. Today the theater is a popular spot on campus for large events, studying, and of course sorority bid day. The Greek Theater is the only one like it in the United States.

University Housing

Design by Elizabeth Bunnell

The Razorback Hall, now known as Gibson Hall, built in 1973, provided the university with more men's housing. During the spring of 1943, the Army Specialized Training Corps took over most of the campus dorms including Razorback Hall, to house Army Air Corps trainees. In 1963, it served as an upper-class female students' dormitory.

Razorback Hall was renamed and rededicated to James L. Gibson Hall on Sept. 13, 1981, in memory of James Gibson who served as the director of housing from 1966 until he died in 1981. Today, Gibson Hall is still popular among students, accommodating up to 98 women. Freshman Gianna Spano said she chose Gibson because it is where her friends also go, and it has a great atmosphere. "When I chose to come to Arkansas it was important to me that I got the whole college experience," Spano said. "I felt that Gibson would be a good part of that." She also said she would continue to choose Gibson because it is a walk away from any events.

Students at the University of Arkansas upon admittance are given the option to live on campus in one of the 19 residence halls. While the location cannot be beat compared to other living opportunities, many of the residence halls can be described as older and overall bleak.

To counteract this common idea, freshmen Ana Kate Bohlman and Claire Stewart turned their Reid Hall double into a true second place to call home.

While many students choose their roommate either based on someone from their high school or by random, Bohlman and Stewart chose their childhood friend from a different state to share their new home. "We made a joke about living together either junior or senior year," Bohlman said. "And we joked about it to our moms, and they still make the joke about if she [Claire] still wanted to live with me."

Upon decorating the famous TikTok space, Bohlman and Stewart had to decide on it. From colors to the overall theme of the room some decisions were easier than others. "I found these pillows on Pinterest a while ago," Stewart said. "And I told Ana that we just had to have them. So, they ended up becoming the centerpiece of the room."

Despite the pillows being for certain in the room, some ideas were made on the fly. "I moved in before Claire since I'm an in-state student." Bohlman said. "So, my stuff was set up first. But even with everything up, the room just felt bland. So, I ordered like 12 rolls of adhesive wallpaper on a whim." Stewart said they decided to put up the wallpaper because they were sure that it would tie everything together in the room.

Many students can say that their freshman dorm did not look anything like Bohlman and Stewart's. However, this roommate pair turned what can appear to be a bleak and degraded shoebox into a bright and happy space to call home for the remainder of the school year.

FAYETTEVILLE'S HOG HOUSES

From hog subway tile to signed merchandise, the "Hog Houses" are the perfect fit for any devoted Razorback fans. Dan and Tracy Richey have been hosting thousands of Hog fans from across the country for over 30 years. The Richeys said they wish to host their three daughters' families for future tailgate traditions. The Richeys purchased their first "Hog House" over 30 years ago. "We ended up purchasing the home(s) because it was always so hard to find hotels back then," Dan Richey said. However, about 15 years ago, the original "Hog House" was sold to a local townhouse company. To keep the legacy alive, the Richeys decided to expand the "Hog House family."

Each of the three homes represents separate themes. The first home, "Razorback Retreat," features an array of vintage Hog merchandise that only the most diehard Hog fans would know of. To fit out each of the homes, the Richeys have spent years scouring thrift stores, Facebook Marketplace and auctions to expand their growing collection. The other two houses, the "SEC House" and the "Hog House," are suited with their own sets of décors. The "Hog House" is the largest of the three properties suited specifically for a large group of fans. It provides a comforting space for a post-game celebration or a pre-game party.

The "SEC House," in particular, features murals by local artists scattered throughout the home. Each of the three bedrooms is dedicated to various SEC rivalries to promote other cherished fandoms, keeping the Razorbacks as the primary focus. Minutes away from campus, decked out to the nines, the Hog Houses further provides the perfect atmosphere for Razorbacks to feel right at home with their favorite team while promoting the notion that "Fayetteville is our happy place."

Tailgates & good times

Saturday, September 9th marked the highly anticipated first home game of Razorback Football. Fans lined up five hours prior to game time to be the first few in the stadium. Others took the opportunity to set up tailgates that would stretch from Razorback Gardens up to Maple Street. Tailgates create a lively atmosphere that comes together with the effort of everyone in attendance. Waving flags, blasting music, and plentiful food were all integral to the pre-game festivities. Although Razorback Red saturated the scene, some fans went a step further and added party themes. “Making it look cute for game day is important,” said Whitley Booth and Taylor Epps, both local hog fans who attended their family’s tailgate.Decked out in luau decorations, the families of Booth and Epps were one of several others who added a crafty theme to their tents. However, fans were not limited to tents. As was the case for Robby Strotter, a long-standing Razorback fan from Texas, who sought shade in the Harmon Avenue parking garage. With a TV, cornhole, snacks and air conditioning, the Strotter family took part in the fun from afar. Strotter said tailgating is a tradition among friends and family where they chill before the ball games. “These are our best friends and family here, so we tailgate together and go to all the games together,” Strotter said. Strotter described himself as a lifelong hog fan with 10 years of tailgating at the parking garage. Along with visiting his two children who attend the university, the energy of game day is a large component of what brings Strotter back to Fayetteville. Although a Texas resident, Strotter said he grew up in Arkansas. Even after moving, he kept his season pass for 25 years. Distance did not stop him from supporting the Razorbacks. “I live in Texas, and I come to every game,” Strotter said. “We do not miss a ball game.” While tailgating is an honored tradition for the Strotters’, it is the opposite for the Scales family. Marilyn and Richard Scales said it was their first time attending a Razorback tailgate. “It’s my daughter’s first year here,” Scales said. She said the tailgate is a super important event to attend just to support her daughter. The couple were accompanied by other family members, all sporting matching t-shirts. They were all looking forward to having the full experience of gameday tailgating. The origin of tailgating began small, with fans setting up in the trunk of their cars with limited space. Now, Razorback fans go big and pack the campus with game day festivities. Filled with food, games, and high spirits, tailgates are a major element of the game day experience.

OPENING SOON—The Union

Built in the fall of 1973, the Arkansas Union celebrated its 50th anniversary on Sept. 20 at the Verizon Ballroom. The Director of the Union Rob Stagni looked back on the celebration. He said it was a great time with a lot of folks coming through and feedback from students who enjoyed the program.

"We got to do some clever and creative and fun things that we don't get to do with our daily jobs, so that was a great opportunity," Stagni said. The planning for the celebration started about a year and a half ago. Stagni said the committee gathered a variety of people from the building and the campus. He said they tried to figure out what the 50th celebration should have looked like.

"It can't be all party with no purpose, and it can't be all very tedious black and white displays on a wall somewhere there," Stagni said. "There had to be a middle ground." Nigel York, assistant director of event services, said he provided audio video reinforcement for the event and helped set up furniture in the ballroom for the tabling. He said there were hotdogs and a 50th cake provided by Ozark Catering. Stagni connected the 50th anniversary cake to the 25th anniversary because of the similar cake scenarios.

"We have pictures of that cake from two and a half decades ago," Stagni said.

"So now we have pictures of cakes over the years around here to celebrate the building."

Stagni said they tried to host throwback activities for the celebration, and the cornhole game became one of the signature features. The ASG presidents, the chair of the union advisory committee and Chancellor Charles Robinson played the game. York said the Union is the heartbeat of campus.

"Everyone is pretty much in and out of here every day at some point because of the food court and/or events going on in here. I interacted and encountered people from all over campus," York said. Stagni agreed that the Union is the beating heart of campus. He said there are many things that happen in and around the building, with many people coming in for hundreds and thousands of different purposes. He said the Union receives about 3 million people a year, so even though it is a little overwhelming, they strive to be as many things as they can for the campus and for the people.

"At the end of the day, people generally have a good feeling about the Union, about using a department or a service, about coming to an event here, getting to see a comedy show here, coming to class here," Stagni said. "And if they have a good experience, that is our goal of the day."

Pickleball Craze

Pickleball has become increasingly popular because of its low barrier entry, health benefits and the chance to mingle and build community. Playing pickleball with people helps stimulate your brain while releasing endorphins which can reduce anxiety, depression and stress, according to Renown.org.

Around 125 years ago, another sport was popular amongst the students of the University of Arkansas: tennis. Shown above is a page from the 1897 edition of the yearbook highlighting the tennis club. Trends have come and gone but students still enjoy picking up some sort of racquet and ball and playing with friends.

The fastest-growing US sport for the fifth year

A racquet sport that combines tennis, badminton and table tennis, has become the newest fascination everywhere, especially at the University of Arkansas. Pickleball was invented in 1965 by three fathers, Joel Pritchard, Bill Bell and Barney McCallum in Bainbridge Island, Washington to entertain their children and create a fun game for their families to enjoy. According to the Anapolis Pickleball Club, more than 3 million players play pickleball in the United States and has been growing more by 10 percent each year over the past decade. Maddie Moreland, a former tennis player who also coached tennis for three years said pickleball is easier than tennis so it's really enjoyable for her to play now that she doesn't practice tennis. According to the Association of Pickleball Professionals, 48.3 million American adults have at least played one game of pickleball in the past 12 months, making it the fastest-growing sport in the US for the fifth year. "If anyone is thinking about playing they should definitely try it out", Moreland said. "I think it's a good way to get outside, hang out with friends and be active". Ashley Reiter, a junior who recently played in a pickleball tournament on campus, said. "I play with my family when I go home, so that's how I got into playing" The approach to get people interested in the pickleball craze has been straightforward. People can play for hours if they have an open space, a net, and a set of paddles and balls. "Anybody can pick up the game and play for fun, but you can also be competitive with it," Reiter said. Most tennis courts even have pickleball lines drawn into them, like the UREC tennis facility behind the Chick-Fil-A on Martin Luther King Jr. Blvd. They have 8 tennis courts with pickleball lines.

Student enrollment at the University of Arkansas has shown drastic growth throughout its 152-year history. Starting out with only seven boys and one girl, the university broke records with over 32,000 students enrolled for the fall 2023 semester. The new freshmen class totaled to 6,344 students, making it the second-biggest class in the university's history.

Although the university attracts students from diverse locations, this year marked an increase in the amount of in-state enrollment. According to the 11th-day enrollment report for fall 2023, the number of Arkansans attending the university increased by 5.9% from the previous year.

"I never really saw myself going out of state and I just wanted to stay close to home," Anette Castillo, a junior from Springdale said. "The U of A was at the top of my list."

Castillo majors in Childhood Education through the 5-year program offered by the College of Education and Health Professions.

Aside from the proximity to home, Castillo said the community and financial aid the university offered were two other elements that made the university special to her. Castillo said she enjoys working with children, which is one of the reasons she chose her major. Representation of the Latinx/e community was another.

"I think that representation really matters for children," Castillo said. "I just really want to be that representation here in Northwest Arkansas". She is one of the 18% of students majoring in teacher education and 6,274 students enrolled at the college.

Tzitlaly Lopez is also a junior enrolled in the College of Education and Health Professions, majoring in Communication Science and Disorders. Lopez said her workload can get difficult, which requires about 1-2 hours of study time multiple times a week.

"The courses are hard, yes, but to know what I am going to achieve at the end of it is very rewarding," Lopez said. She said she hopes to be a speech therapist after graduating. According to the U.S. News and World Report, a few of the most popular majors chosen at the university are business management, engineering and health professions with related programs. The College of Health and Professions is home of two of the largest departments at the university: The Department of Health and Human Performance and Recreation.

Fayetteville Farmer's Market

On a daily basis, the address of 21 W. Mountain St. in Fayetteville serves as a home for two different businesses: Tiny Tim's Pizza and West Mountain Brewing Co. Every Saturday, however, the street turns out to be home to the Fayetteville Farmers Market with stands of products and customers from 8 am to 2 am for six hours a week.

Fayetteville's farmers market possesses a lively, charming atmosphere all of its own. Located less than a mile from the university and Dickson Street, the area receives a lot of foot traffic every Saturday, allowing local businesses to interact with new customers every week.

Deborah McConnell, owner of Negu Leather Co., is one of the vendors selling handmade leather products.

"It's a good opportunity to meet customers in the community," McConnell said with a bright smile on her face. Many customers who were interested in McConnell's wares stopped by. They seemed eager to discuss a beautiful leather handbag made by McConnell herself.

Like many other vendors, McConnell is explicitly responsible for the products on her table. She handcrafts different leather products: wallets, handbags, sheathes and many other items. They are all high-quality items, and McConnell said she was extremely proud of her work.

The square, bustling with activity, is home to an assortment of other businesses. Beautiful examples of portraits made by an artist who is available for commission, a booth of stuffed animals with brightly colored skins, and a table of hand-knit beanies, gloves, and other warm items. Most items are produce-related, with many selling plants, honeys, and their very own homegrown crops. "Everyone is always really nice," said Carson Hardin, a customer at the farmers market. "I really enjoy the people here. They all have really good energy about the things they do. There's a lot of passion."

Hardin was just one of dozens of customers laughing and smiling as they discussed products with the vendors. Many purchases left both parties grinning. "It's really important to support small businesses," Hardin said. "If you have the time, the farmers market is a good place for anyone to find something they need. Plus, there are a lot of dogs, in case that is important to anyone."

FROM KARAOKE TO CONCERTOS

Amid the diverse landscape of the University of Arkansas, music is a unifying force that transcends boundaries, language and culture. Beyond a simple form of entertainment, music tells powerful stories and forges genuine connections. For students, music has the potential to bring people together and create harmonious friendships.

It's hard to walk across campus without seeing students nodding their heads to the beat of tunes playing through their AirPods. In class, you might engage in discussion about anticipating your next concert or recounting the thrill of dancing the night away over the weekend. Music is a constant companion that infuses college students' daily lives.

For some students, music is more than just a pastime. Garland Watson, a freshman double major in music education and clarinet performance, is in the wind ensemble marching band and frequently performs at the Faulkner Performing Arts Center.

"Music is my everything in life," he said. "I listen to music constantly. Most of my friends have come through my love for music."

For some students, music is a formal platform to showcase passion and skill, but for others, it is a method of expressing unbridled, carefree joy, especially through the realms of karaoke.

Reid Pinckard, a junior journalism and political science major, is a self-proclaimed karaoke enthusiast.

"Karaoke is so much more than singing and singing well," Pinckard said. "It's a chance to just completely be you around random strangers that don't care whether you're pitchy or completely tone-def. It's community building in the most unusual way."

The University of Arkansas is home to many music-related organizations, including band, theater, dance and orchestra. Headliners Concert Committee also works to conduct free musical events throughout the year. Outside of campus, many students have also ventured into creating their own bands or beginning a DJ business. From pursuing music as a degree to attending a concert, Fayetteville is a place where everyone can find a way to dance to the beat of their own musical drum.

Coffee:

The Daily Routine

With most college students experiencing daily stress and sleep deprivation due to busy schedules, coffee has become an integral part of the academic experience.

In Fayetteville, the cafe options are as diverse as the campus itself, offering more than just a caffeine fix. These cafes cater not only to cravings but those seeking a casual retreat or bustling atmosphere to check off boxes on the to-do list.

Some popular destinations in the town are 7 Brew, Bolder, Basecamp, Doomsday, Little Bread Company, Onyx and Puritan. Students on campus also have access to Arsaga's, Hill Coffee and Starbucks.

Junior Hannah Soechting's favorite place to get coffee is Onyx Coffee Lab for both the aesthetics and the motivation.

"The atmosphere is relaxing but not sterile," Soechting said. "It's very open and refreshing, and my friend and I like to sit by the window and watch the dogs go by while we do work."

After Soechting finishes her assignments, she also likes to take her beverage and walk around town with a friend, she said.

Soechting said her favorite memory at the shop is from the first time she went when visiting her sister, who was then a current student. Their mom surprised them with their favorite drink order, which for Soechting, was a salted mocha.

"Whenever my family visits, we always have to make a stop at Onyx at least once," she said.

Every Christmas, Soechting gathers with her friends to exchange Christmas gifts, a new tradition to end the fall semester.

In Fayetteville and at the University of Arkansas, enjoying coffee isn't just about the coffee; it's about encouraging inspiration and creating memories with friends and family.

"The energy of Onyx helps give me the motivation and sense of importance to enjoy doing my work, with the help of coffee of course," Soechting said.

Fall in Fay

The fall season brings remarkable natural scenery to Northwest Arkansas and opens the door to seasonal activities. As the cooler temperatures begin to settle in, the fall aesthetic of "sweater weather" and fall cliches make an entrance as well. Despite the unusually high temperatures this year, students began preparing for the cooler season by participating in their favorite fall traditions.

"I really enjoy the fall aesthetic with the coffee, Halloween movies, cookies, sweaters, and blankets," said sophomore Kylie Multz. "I feel like my mood in the fall is more chill because the weather is nice and it's typically breezy."

With Halloween being the staple of the season, students enjoyed attending pumpkin patches, corn mazes and haunted houses in celebration. In preparation for the Halloween festivities, Multz said she attended a haunted house with her friends.

"I also like to buy pumpkins and paint them or carve them," Multz said. Some locally owned pumpkin patches in Fayetteville reside in Rivercrest Orchard and Reagan Family Farm. The Rivercrest Orchard also hosts a variety of other activities, such as ziplining, hayrides and corn mazes, according to the 2023 Guide to Pumpkin Patches in Northwest Arkansas. The pumpkin spice craze is another highlight of the fall season. Although not an avid pumpkin spice enjoyer, Multz said she does love pumpkin bread and pumpkin muffins with chocolate chips.

Although the fall season revives the spirits of some students, it can also be challenging for others including sophomore Olivia Schinker. She said fall is her favorite season, but it doesn't come without its difficulties.

Schinker said it can be a challenge for many because midterms creep in and grades start getting serious. However, she said you get to look cute while you're going through the toughness.

"The seasonal depression comes out," she said, "but I also love fall because it's when it gets colder, and I can dress cute."

Nature in NWA

Nestled in the southwest corner of the Boston Mountains of the Ozarks, Northwest Arkansas is home to several natural wonders. The unique landmarks of the region make it a beloved natural attraction for tourists.

Hobbs State Park in Rogers is another remarkable spot that is located on the outskirts of Beaver Lake. One of Arkansas's major rivers, the White River, runs through Bentonville and sources the lakes that are staples to NWA.

The Fayetteville landscape also captures the Arkansas scenery. Ranging from rivers and lakes to trails and gardens, Fayetteville offers beautiful sightseeing. Its diverse landscape makes it a hotspot for outdoor activities such as biking, hiking, kayaking and fishing.

Freshman Adara Bankson, a native of Rogers, is an outdoors fanatic. She participates in a variety of outdoor recreational activities such as paddleboarding, camping, hiking and trail running. For Bankson, nature is her "happy place".

"I feel like my head is clear and I think better," Bankson said. "It's just super good for you mentally and physically."

Bankson lives next to Beaver Lake, a popular spot for camping and swimming. She said she prefers outdoor water activities, which is why she loves living next to the lake.

For Lauren Linville, sophomore from Mansfield, Texas, moving to NWA was a stark change in scenery. "There are trails like the Greenway, 30 miles of concrete trail, which we don't have in Mansfield," Linville said. Some distinctive features she loves about Fayetteville are its trees and rocks, Linville said.

"You kind of go into Devil's Den and it creates all those cliffs and all that sort of sandstone," Linville said. "So, it's all really pretty."

Trail hiking is a common recreational activity among Arkansas residents. Popular trails in Fayetteville are located throughout Kessler Mountain, Lake Fayetteville and Finger Park Trail.

When going on the bigger trails of Bentonville, Linville said she makes sure to bring a water bottle, a charger, a GoPro and food if she decides to picnic. Linville said nature is freeing for her. "There's no limits to it," she said. "But at the same time, I feel like you're kind of breaking free from your own limits."

Spirit of the School

Dating back to the early 1970s, the Razorback Mascot Team has become one of the most beloved Razorback traditions. Big Red also known as the "Fighting Razorback," and red friends: Sue E, Pork Chop, Ribby and Boss Hog, easily bring a smile to every Hog fan's face.

Alongside all Razorback game experiences our friends are even open to special appearances by request. The mascot team celebrates diverse types of events ranging from RSO events to city-wide. By working through the Northwest Arkansas community, the mascot team can impact Hog fans all over, instead of just on campus.

Even though Big Red arrived at the University of Arkansas in the early 1970's, the rest of the squad did not arrive until later. Sue E, famous for her costume changes and dancing abilities did not join until the early 1990s, when Pork Chop and Boss Hog joined in the late 1990s. Ribby, the Baseball Hog makes sure to create an entrance at every baseball game, home and away.

Every mascot has a different personality, and with a different personality comes different experiences. Big Red remains the main face, however he can be a bit "wild" since he represents the "intimidating fighting spirit" of the Razorbacks. Sue E, loves her series of costume changes as well as her dancing abilities. Boss Hog, named from the "Dukes of Hazzard" movie, is a 9-foot-tall inflatable Hog, known for being plain humorous.

While each mascot serves a different role, the one thing they have in common is the Razorback fan base. Every Razorback fan is aware of the role of the mascots and can celebrate no matter the outcome of a sporting event.

A COURT IS CROWNED

The 2023 Homecoming celebration took place from Oct. 18 to 21, featuring new traditions, according to the university. Even though the Homecoming parade, an old tradition, did not happen this year, the Arkansas Alumni Association and the Division of Student Affairs introduced a new event called "HOCO Party on the Mall," which is an inaugural event open to all the members of the university and their families.

"HOCO Party on the Mall" allowed campus community including Jackson Walton, the 2023 Homecoming King, to interact with each other.

Walton said the event was an opportunity for him to meet and get to know people he might not have ever met.

"I just truly loved how everyone was together in one spot," Walton said, "celebrating the university and celebrating the Homecoming."

The Associated Student Government announced Mackenzie Mollner and Walton as the Homecoming Queen and King at the 2023 Homecoming football game on Oct. 21.

"It was really an honor, probably the honor of my lifetime," Walton said.

As a student from a small college, Walton said it was daunting to transfer to a big school like the University of Arkansas. However, Walton said becoming the Homecoming King taught him an important lesson.

"The biggest lesson was that" Walton said, "it's not too hard to make something of yourself to get to know people. This place is so welcoming."

Studying Abroad

The faculty-led Health Teams Abroad program in Sweden features the breathtaking views of Scandinavia and gives students a look at the advanced aspects of Sweden's healthcare system. Sophomore Gavin Miller studied abroad through this program last summer.

The Health Teams Abroad Program gives students an introduction to European medicine, and how it differs from the American system. The program is also a way for students to gain clinical experience and learn more about Swedish culture.

For the semester before the program, Miller said the group met once a week to learn more about America's system first.

"We went and toured different clinics, just to see how things work here," Miller said. "We learned a lot about the taxes, and the policies that make our system not universal."

In Sweden, the group toured clinics and learned about different healthcare systems compared to America's. Millier said they spent the first two weeks in Jonkoping and went to Stockholm.

"I had a great time," Miller said. "Everybody was so nice. They were all pretty passionate about healthcare, and I hadn't really seen that before in my classes."

Outside of clinical experience, the program also offers cultural education experiences. Miller said the group spent the last week touring the country's capital and seeing the sights.

"The downtown there is really awesome," Miller said. "We went to a concert and saw the Weekend in Stockholm."

There was also time for students to explore in their own time.

Miller said he visited Copenhagen and Denmark one weekend during his stay. Sticking with a small group, he said he had fun traveling to other areas.

Before going on the trip, Miller said he was on the fence between pursuing public health or medicine. Even though the trip made her appreciate

"The trip made me appreciate public health as it is, but I think I found that I want the more instant gratification of helping someone in an office or a clinic or something like that," Miller said. "It kind of solidified my pre-med choice. It made me want to be a physician more so that we can work towards a system like theirs."

Renovating Mullins

As the Mullins Library renovation is underway, the first and second floor will open before Fall 2024, according to the university.

While Level 3 and 4 reponed on August 23, 2021, the rest of the construction of the rest of the floors began in Spring 2023 and is expected to conclude in July 2024.

"After the renovation the spaces will be entirely transformed," said Adriana Gonzalez, Senior Associate Dean for Research and Learning of the university libraries.

Even though there will be many changes including gallery space for exhibits and an expanded stored space with a climate control, Gonzalez said the one key difference to the first-floor features "Fowler's Nook Café," a new coffee shop. Located in the southwest of the building, the coffee shop will have an entrance from the outside.

"That would be incredibly different for the library" Gonzalez said. "So, we are really excited about what that means to the rest of the library, which hopefully means increased traffic through a key service to the special collections."

Gonzalez said the second floor will also contribute to the library's major transformation. She said the floor's renovation entails more practical, expansional learning experiences such as the Augmented and Virtual Reality Lab and Rooms.

Gonzalez said she expects the renovation of the library to pique an interest, and there will be increased intradisciplinary works done by students and faculty because the library spaces are open to anyone.

"By anyone, we really mean anyone," Gonzalez said. "Anyone from the very first student who walks in to maybe the experienced doctoral student. We really anticipate that happening in our new spaces."

A Slow Start

The University of Arkansas closed campus for two days due to inclement weather. Because there were no scheduled classes on campus and the snow piled up above the ankles, the students were excited to go out and enjoy the snowy weather.

AJ Boudreaux, freshman majoring in advertising and public relations, loved the snow. Along with her friends, she ventured outside to take pictures, walked around, and made snow angels on the lawn of the Arkansas Student Union.

"I really enjoyed the snow because I never really experienced that before, and I just thought it was so beautiful," Boudreaux said. "I loved waking up and finding a sheet of it on the ground. It was just so pretty, and it wasn't as cold as I thought it was going to be."

Boudreaux said she did not go sledding because she did not have any sleds, and her roommate was sad for her because she had never been sledding before.

As Boudreaux originally hailed from Louisiana, she had never seen snow before. She said that winter in Louisiana is "ice and slush" and that even though it was cold, it was not winter since it was "kind of dead."

"I think since it's so rare and such a foreign concept to me that I was just so excited," Boudreaux said. "And it was so fun because I'm used to the brown and dirt."

CREATIVE community

The origins of the Adohi Creative Community came from an IT specialist who thought it would be a great idea to build a creative community in 2019. The creative maker space is where students living on campus can use the available facilities and equipment for various activities like spray painting, studying and practicing music.

Helana Alexander, sophomore majoring in communications and minoring in theatre and art history, currently works as a lead creative community assistant. Recently, a new policy was added regarding access to the maker space.

"Starting this semester in January, it's only for residents," Alexander said. "It has to do with the funds that pay for the creative community, so those come from room and board funds rather than the general student tuition and student activities fees."

Alexander said there are about 10 different hour-long workshops free for everyone to come and explore, and they have "everything from poker to baking."

Alexander runs the front desk, checks people in, does rounds of checking the doors, manages all the workshops and trains students on different machines.

Creative freedom is what the maker space wants to embody. Alexander said she feels that creative freedom is a person's personal expression. When people are discovering themselves and growing into the people they want to be, she said creative expression is a part of that because through art, they can learn who they want to be and express themselves.

"In college, you get put into these boxes of classes where you have specific rules, regulations like assignments, projects, and things," Alexander said. "But when you're creative and you come into the creative community and want to do a project, that's all up to you."

She said the maker space is a community to her. It is a community of people that can come together and make them feel like they belong to something.

Booked & Busy

The Dickson Street Bookshop has been an establishment of Fayetteville since 1978. Its location in the bustling entertainment district offers visitors a nook for peaceful book-browsing. The bookshop has more than 100,000 used and out-of-print books despite its unassuming size at first glance. About 200 new books are shelved every day, all contributions from members of the community. "It's really fun to see when people come in for the first time and they're just blown away by how big the store is," said Suedee Hall Elkins, manager at the bookshop.

Elkins started working at the bookshop in 2010 and said she has the best job in the world. "It's super fun to see all the stuff that comes in," Elkins said. The bookshop's proximity to the University of Arkansas attracts students who need a break from studying. Elkins said students are busy with school and are not doing much pleasure reading.

"Even if they're not buying stuff, it's a nice reprieve from the craziness of the college life," Elkins said. Students also stop by when they want a neat place to show family members from out of town. Elkins said they are proud of the store.

Along with students, tourists and locals are regularly checking back in the bookshop to search through the daily donations. Elkins said people enjoy the hunt. "If you don't come in often, you'll miss it," she said. Aside from collecting used books, Elkins said she believes the bookshop is special because it is a "reflection of the community". The books that come in are donated by college students who come from all over, and professors that move through and retire, she said. Donald Choffel, one of the founders of the bookshop, and the craftsmanship of locals helped build the shelves of the store.

"We're making the magic," Elkins said. "There's just not another store like it."

MARDI GRAS PARADE

The University of Arkansas embraced the Mardi Gras spirit by hosting events that infused campus community with festive vibes. Mardi Gras, a French term meaning "Fat Tuesday," is a widely celebrated cultural event. Its origins can be traced back thousands of years to ancient pagan rituals associated with spring and fertility.

The Multicultural Center and the Black Graduate Students' Association collaborated to host a celebration event on Feb. 13.

Students gathered at the Multicultural Center in the Arkansas Union to enjoy the atmosphere of Fat Tuesday with traditional New Orleans dishes such as king cakes and gumbo.

"For the event, we ordered king cakes, which is a traditional dessert that's associated with Mardi Gras," said AnReckez Daniels, assistant director of the Multicultural Center. "And we ordered them from a vendor in New Orleans, which we were really happy to be able to shop local."

In the New Orleans tradition, the king cakes have a few small toy babies inside, and finding one is considered a sign of good luck. Daniels said there were a couple people who found the babies at the event.

Daniels said that the local vender shipped the cakes from New Orleans to the U of A, and about 150 attendees came through and enjoyed the local taste.

"We were really excited about having the authentic cake here for the event," Daniels said.

LOVE IS IN THE AIR

Valentine's Day colored the University of Arkansas red, pink and white with many original events organized by campus communities. Students, faculty and staff celebrated the special day with a warm love for each other.

Wendy Hernandez, a sophomore in supply chain management, enjoyed a sweet Valentine's Day with her partner.

"My boyfriend took me to a restaurant, and we had dinner there," Hernandez said. "But also, he got me flowers."

Hernandez said there was something cute about the day because it was her first time in her life spending Valentine's Day with a loved one.

Hernandez said her boyfriend amazed her in lovely ways. He gave her a bouquet, Taylor Swift's third album "Speak Now," Hernandez's favorite, and a big card with a message from him. She said she felt special that her boyfriend remembered her favorite thing and gave it as a gift.

"The album has more songs, so I know that it was expensive," Hernandez said. "So that means a lot for me, especially because he knows that my favorite artist is Taylor Swift."

Hernandez also had a special gift for her boyfriend on Valentine's Day.

"He likes to play video games, so I got him a 'Hot Wheels' video game," Hernandez said. "Also, he likes 'Star Wars,' so I got him a 'Star Wars' card."

Remembering the last Valentine's Day, Hernandez said spending such special occasions by herself feels lonely, especially as an international student. Originally from Panama, she said having someone close to her made Valentine's Day even special for her.

"Especially because we are international students and we don't have family here," Hernandez said. "It's always nice to have someone that you can be with and spend time with."

Fit Fay

Community is one of the values that University Recreation holds, and it honors it through the Group Fitness program. Students, staff, and UREC members can attend a variety of fitness classes in group sessions offered at all UREC facilities.

The Group Fitness program includes six types of workout classes; mind and body, cardio, cycle, cardio, strength, and water fitness. According to the University Recreation eligibility index, registration allows members "unlimited attendance" to these classes.

Olivia Ouimette is a freshman fitness instructor for the program who primarily teaches dance fit. She also instructs her own core and mobility classes each week.

She said the most popular class attended by students is the Zumba class, which falls under the cardio category.

"It's in the evenings so it's a great time for kids who are done with classes and stuff," Ouimette said.

She describes her dance fit class as a "giant dance party", where participants focus on cardio and legs.

The size of the classes ranges and depends on the time of day and course during the semester. Groups can have as many as 30 participants per session, Ouimette said.

However, some classes are uniquely designed to offer a break for students during stressful times. Such is the case with candlelit yoga, which is popular during finals week.

Group fitness is a convenient program for busy students looking for flexibility in commitment and level of intensity. It also offers relief from the anxiety new gym-goers confront when beginning their fitness journey.

"Having a class where you just follow along or don't think about feeling weird or awkward is a great intro," Ouimette said.

Ouimette said she believes that motivation is an important benefit of exercising in a group. Her core class is only 30 minutes, yet students push hard and leave feeling good, she said.

"Even if you're not talking, just having them there is almost like accountability," Ouimette said.

Outfits On the Hill

The past century saw the emergence of two of the most popular fashion eras: the 1920s and 1970s. Each has its remarkable trends that influenced future styles in subtle and obvious ways, including the fashion of 2024.

The baggy pant style was a staple for both the 20s and 2024. In the 20s, this was known as the "Oxford bags," a trend brought back to America by students who studied abroad at the Ivy League school.

Although the baggy trouser style was a niche among prestigious schools in the 20s, it has evolved into a universal trend. Baggy jeans are now popular among most college students, a comeback from the 90s.

In 1924, women on the University of Arkansas campus were captured wearing long skirts, cloche hats, and fur coats. Almost all wore the bob hairstyle, a staple of the Roaring 20s.

The 70s were marked by the bohemian inspiration from the 60s and its ascent into the 80s disco attire. A couple of major trends that stuck around until 2024 are platform and leather boots among girls.

Gogo boots and chunky heels continue to be the go-to statement shoes for a night out. Likewise, black leather boots have stood the test of time.

Mia Freedman, a junior majoring in apparel merchandising and product development, takes inspiration from the 70s and 60s.

"You can have a lot of fun with it," Freedman said. "They like to incorporate a lot of different patterns and textures."

Freedman said that 90s have a strong influence on today's style.

"I mean, it's told to be every 20 years, things come back," Freedman said.

The grunge look, popularized by icons such as Kurt Cobain and Drew Barrymore, is characterized by fleece cardigans and sweaters, layers, and Doc Martens.

Today's college outfits pull inspiration from the entire spectrum of fashion. While some trends remain suspended in their time, others evolve and emerge throughout history.

UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS

WHY ARKANSAS?

The University of Arkansas is one of the biggest universities in the state, and it has many opportunities and skills for undergraduates and graduates. There are students from not only Arkansas but also other states and countries.

Before finally committing to the university, John Eckert, a freshman double majoring in anthropology and psychology and minoring in theatre, contemplated between the U of A and a private Christian university in Missouri called Evangel University.

"It was good, but ultimately, they paid more to come here," Eckert said. "I knew more people who were here, and I think those were the two big reasons. I felt better about here."

Eckert said he was indecisive on attending the university because he did not know if it was what he really wanted by going there.

"Fayetteville has a reputation, but I was like that reputation is not true for everyone," Eckert said. "I'm living proof of that right now because I don't party, I go and learn, and I go play Fortnite on the couch and all of that stuff."

When Eckert enrolled, he was an undecided major until he took a quiz to see what majors it would recommend him.

"Anthropology and psychology were two of the top choices," Eckert said. "I didn't declare the majors until the middle of the fall semester, but as soon as I figured out that I liked the classes, I was like 'yeah, anthropology and psychology.'"

Jackson Dowler, a freshman double majoring in English and psychology and minoring in Japanese, had family ties to the university since both his parents are alumni.

"I was like 'I don't really care if I go to the same one as my parents, but I really liked Fayetteville as a town,'" Dowler said. "I liked the food, and I liked how you could walk everywhere so not having to drive to literally everything like in high school for places where you want to have fun with your friends is great."

Another major reason Dowler decided on the University of Arkansas is his pre-law path.

"All that matters is that I got a degree that was something that would help me in law school," Dowler said. "I didn't consider things like 'oh, this place is really good.' I was always just like 'I need to go somewhere that I can go to law school.'"

Dowler also said he attended because of individuality and expression. He said he wanted to grow his hair, so he did. He said he enjoyed debate, so he joined the Speech and Debate Society and ended up being the Novice Division Champion and Novice Arkansas Champion.

"The university allows you to become yourself," Dowler said. "The classes offered, the clubs, and the culture in general helps you not only get an education but also learn who you are, and that's invaluable. That's not something that any college can offer, and I think that's something the University of Arkansas does really well."

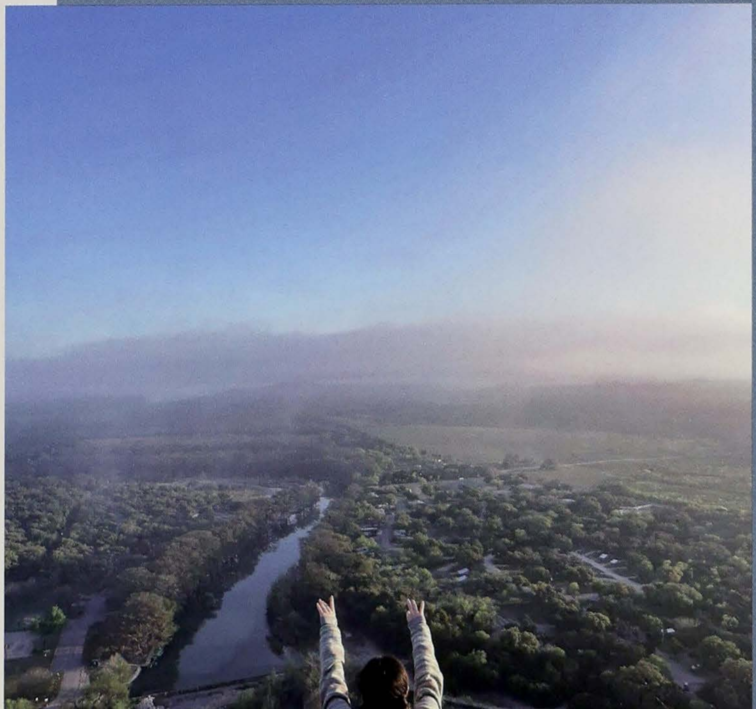
SPRING BREAK



Spring break is an annual week-long rest from classes for students usually in the months of March or April. It gives students the opportunity to take a break before the end of the second semester and final exams.

For University of Arkansas students, spring break occurred from March 18 to 22. Many students use this break to travel all over the world, rest and connect with family and friends before returning to class.

Audrey Shellhammer, a freshman mathematics major from Springdale, said she is looking forward to spending her spring break with a friend. She is going to visit her friend's hometown, which is a small town in southern Illinois that is close to St. Louis.

"I met a girl at the beginning of the semester, and we've become pretty good friends," Shellhammer said. "I'm actually going with her to her hometown, and she's going to show me around."

Shellhammer said she is most excited to visit a bookstore that her friend told her about. She said she is looking forward to meeting some of her friend's friends that she has talked to over the phone but never met in person.

Shellhammer describes spring break as a time where students can "be ourselves." She said her ideal spring break would be taking time to read, rest, bake and cook. She also expressed interest in traveling internationally, specifically to Ireland or Italy for a future spring break.

She said she is ready to get some more rest over the break. "I think I'll feel a little bit more refreshed, but I think that first week is going to be hard coming back," Shellhammer said. "I'll have a little more sleep in my system."

Shellhammer said she appreciates having a break during the second semester. "For first semester, we have fall break and Thanksgiving, so it's nice to have a break during second semester."

SHOW ME YOUR SPIRIT

The Arkansas Pom Team and Arkansas Cheerleaders appeared and performed at both football and basketball games. Tony Morris served as the Director of Spirit Programs and Community Outreach. In August, Jerel Stewart was selected as the new head cheerleading coach. Razorback Pom Squad Head Coach Meghan Springston worked with the dance team throughout football, basketball, and baseball season.

HERITAGE TRAIL

April 8th marked Arkansas in the path of totality for a solar eclipse. In Fayetteville, a deep partial solar eclipse with a magnitude of 98.5% peaked at 1:51 p.m. To observe the solar eclipse, the University of Arkansas held a viewing event at the Greek Theatre.

Nayra Torres, a freshman majoring in biology, traveled to Ozark and parked at a McDonald's to view the solar eclipse.

"It was beautiful," Torres said. "It almost didn't look real. The eclipse lasted for about two minutes from where I watched it."

Torres said solar eclipses are not only amazing to look at but are also very rare occurrences. She has been obsessed with them because it means a lot to her to see the "stunning and unreal views" even though the events are short.

"Our moon is just the right size and distance from the Sun to allow this occurrence to happen," Torres said. "Once you learn that concept, solar eclipses become something many people go absolutely head over heels for, and we only get a few chances in our lives to see it."

When Daniel Kennefick, professor in the physics department, visited his family member's farm in Paris, Arkansas, he said the eclipse was "fun and quite awe-inspiring."

"I thought it was brilliant," Kennefick said. "I have tried previously to see an eclipse, including the 2017 one in Missouri, where I got a pretty good view, but I thought this eclipse was even better."

He said he believed he had the chance to appreciate the eclipse because he knew a little more about what to expect and could notice the details. The solar flare, or prominence, impressed Kennefick because he was able to see it vividly.

"Somebody who's never seen one would travel because they thought 'hey, maybe I should go see one,'" Kennefick said. "If you have seen one before, I think you might think 'gosh, that was pretty amazing, and I wouldn't mind seeing that again, right?'"

Kennefick understands people's worries about taking off the eclipse glasses to look at the sun, but he also said because the corona is not that bright, it is fine to take the glasses off when the Sun is in total.

"What we don't understand is that the Sun is so bright that even a small part of it is still very, very bright enough to light up the whole sky and hurt our eyes," Kennefick said.

Kennefick stresses about how the "eclipse sun is not more dangerous than the Sun normally is" because it is safe in actual totality.

"You're not likely to hurt yourself unless you are silly enough to stare at the Sun for a long period," Kennefick said. "I know that we always try to warn people not to hurt themselves by staring at the Sun, but at the same time, there's no real need to be afraid of it. If you're not the type of person who would do something silly, you're not going to get hurt by it."

AMPD FASHION SHOW

Enclothe production is an annual fashion show organized by students in Apparel Merchandising and Product Development (AMPD) program. It is an opportunity for students passionate about fashion to get involved with the industry and showcase their creativity to the community.

The goals of the AMPD include highlighting sustainability, diversity, and inclusion within the program. Students have the freedom to incorporate their own ambitions to reflect the principles of the show.

"When people think of Arkansas, they don't think of fashion," senior Maya Lester said. "We want to show that students are putting forth effort in our program."

Maya Lester is an apparel merchandising and product development major and is part of the show producer committee for Enclothe. She is the logistics producer.

Lester's leadership role as a logistics producer requires her to oversee the venue and program committees and ensure their operations are running accordingly.

Enclothe chooses a theme each year based on emerging trends in combination with inspiration from the student committees. This year's theme is "En Soirée," French for an elegant evening party or gathering.

"It's like a 20s type of vibe with a little bit of French," Lester said.

Alongside organizing the event, students can participate as designers. Student designers have worked on their designs throughout the semester in their advanced apparel class.

Members of the community are also able to submit their designs for review.

"There are over 70 designers, and the majority are AMPD majors," Lester said.

Lester usually works behind the scenes but said the 2024 production would be her first time designing a garment for the show.

"I'm excited to get my garment out there and show my talent," Lester said.

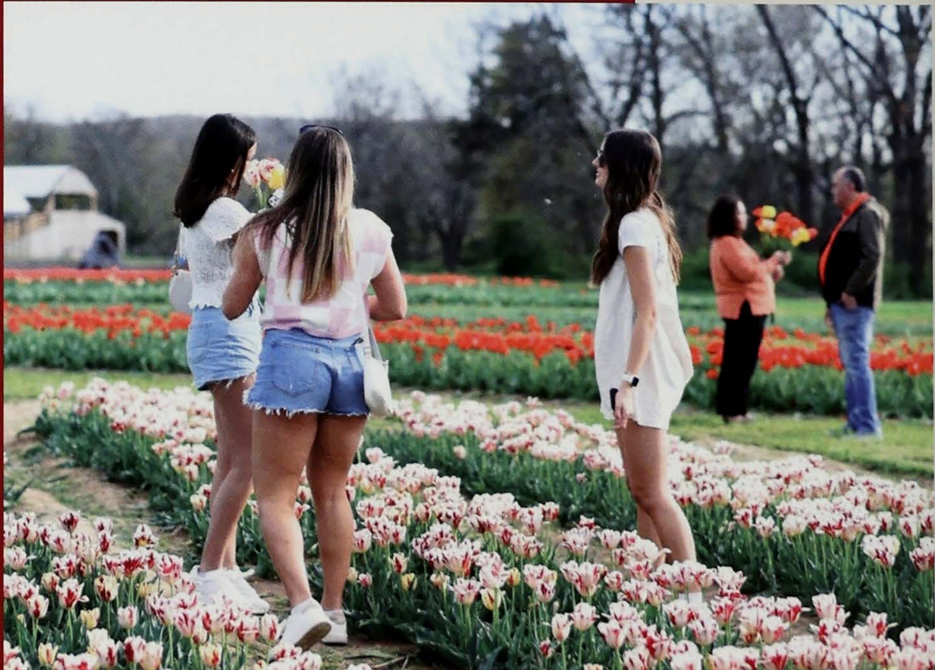
IN BLOOM



SILAS H HUNT HALL

Changes in the springtime start with the appearances of blooming tulips around places like Silas Hunt and Old Main. Around that time is when students are anticipating spring break, enjoying nature and experiencing midterm exams.

Abi Henson, a freshman double-majoring in mechanical engineering and music education, saw a post about the tulip festival from Rivercrest Orchard's Instagram. At the festival, there were big fields that grew different colors and kinds of tulips, and people could take pictures and pick tulips.

"When I clicked on it, it was like 'this is only a 10-minute drive from you,' so I wanted to go," Henson said.

Henson said she believed the change of seasons in Fayetteville is more pronounced compared to her hometown Little Rock.

"It's really pretty to watch everything happen like the leaves changing colors in the fall and then all the flowers in the spring," Henson said.

She said she noticed more flowers on campus, and spring is colder in the northwest region. Along with the flowers, she said she also noticed more pollen.

"My allergies hate it since there's more pollen here," Henson said. "We're still in Arkansas, but it's like some different pollen than I'm used to."

Henson said the greenery outside her dorm makes her feel like she is in a fairytale. She appreciated the the landscape because she believes being surrounded by flowers makes it is "easier to be happy."

"It's very easy to kind of lock yourself into the same routine where you go to classes and all that," Henson said. "Classes are stressful so having a little reminder that things can be pretty and that everything is fine is nice."

Whenever she sees flowers, Henson said she thinks of friendship. She said she bonded with her friends when they were studying for midterm exams.

"It's also kind of exciting because I spend more springtime with my friends than I do in the summer," Henson said.

She said she associated tulips with remembering the little things. The tulips on campus are like reminders because they are the small things that "make a big difference."

"Flowers aren't super big, and they don't take up a lot of space," Henson said. "Just making a small effort to plant flowers on campus makes a huge difference in the campus atmosphere because it feels more homey."

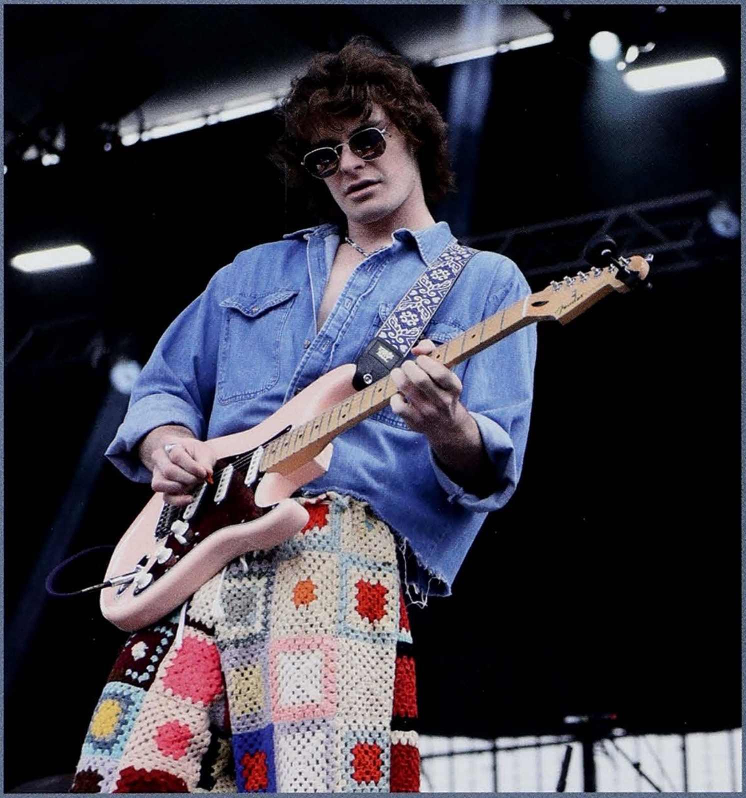
Springtime



Springtime of Youth is a music festival hosted by the University of Arkansas Headliner Concerts Committee. The concert is free for the students but is also open to the public. This year, the production was held at Baum-Walker Stadium's parking lot on Saturday, April 20, and it featured the artists Bazzi, Echosmith, Rico Nasty and Cults.

Despite it being a cloudy day, the crowd was enthusiastic about the experience, often singing, dancing and raising their hands in the air as the artists performed. The event hosted vendors and food trucks, such as Bethel Brew, Beaver Tails and Grandpa's Vintage. Attendees had opportunities to pose for pictures at the shimmering photo booth, which was decorated like a disco ball.

Harrison Houston, a sophomore psychology major from Benton, Arkansas, attended his first Springtime of Youth this year. He decided to go once he saw that Bazzi was performing, who he has been listening to since 2015.

"I've always been a big fan of his, so that's what pushed me to go," Houston said. He also said his favorite song that was performed was "Mine" by Bazzi.

Houston said that the crowd was having a really good time, especially once Echosmith started performing. "It felt like the crowd was just having a really good time," he said.

Houston said he enjoyed some of the food trucks with the tacos, churros and funnel cakes. Springtime of Youth was one of his first major school events to attend, and it was a pleasant surprise to him.

"It exceeded my expectations," Houston said. "I knew there would be a lot of people there, but it was really awesome."

Houston said he "100%" will attend Springtime of Youth next year. "It was really awesome," he said. "It was probably one of the better concerts I've been to."

TAKE ME OUT TO THE HOG PEN

Baum-Walker Stadium – home to the Omahogs, is a must-see sight in Fayetteville, Arkansas. This is for a few reasons – but the most prominent is the energy from our Hog fans.

"I like the environment of Baum, and the Hog Pen is super fun," senior Ben Preston said.

Students like Preston attend many of the Razorback baseball games. "I try to attend most of the home games and then I try to go to an away series once per year," Preston said.

The Hog Pen is Baum Walker's designated home for students. Seating half of the 12,000-seating capacity – the Hog Pen is a go-to for students as well as fellow Hog fans.

"Sometimes work during the Baseball games, but I try to go with friend's majority of the time," Preston said. "We load our cooler with alcohol and have a fun time."

The unique thing about Baum-Walker stadium is fans being able to bring their own coolers, snacks, and tailgate necessities unlike at Donald W. Reynolds stadium. This policy allows fans to achieve their own experience at Baum Walker that not many other Razorback facilities allow.

"My favorite thing about Baseball is the energy the game brings," Preston said. "This year my favorite thing was easily the LSU series. Specifically, during the second game when we had hit a walk-off double, the crowd was amazing, and it was super fun."

PIKE Suspended from Campus

The Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity at the University of Arkansas faced sanctions after the university detected violation of the university's code of student life in December 2023.

In April, the Office of Student Accountability received a report from an anonymous source after a student posted a video on social media showing an initiation ritual at the fraternity house.

The video captured members hitting their fraternity brothers with a large paddle. The university suspended the fraternity's activities soon after the report.

The fraternity has been removed from its housing since Dec. 15 and cannot return until the end of spring semester in 2025, according to a letter to the fraternity's chapter president from Rachel Eikenberry, director for the Office of Student Standards and Conduct.

Additionally, the sanctions include a $1,500 fine and the revocation of the fraternity's status as a registered student organization for a year, according to the letter.

The Greek Life students participated in the National Hazing Prevention Week in September 2023. Members in sororities and fraternities posted photos on social media with the phrase "These hands don't haze" written on their bodies and displayed banners with the same message outside their houses.

The fraternity updated the "Anti-Hazing" page on its website on Sep. 14. The page displays hazing prevention strategies that emphasizes that "hazing is illegal," as well as an incident report form.

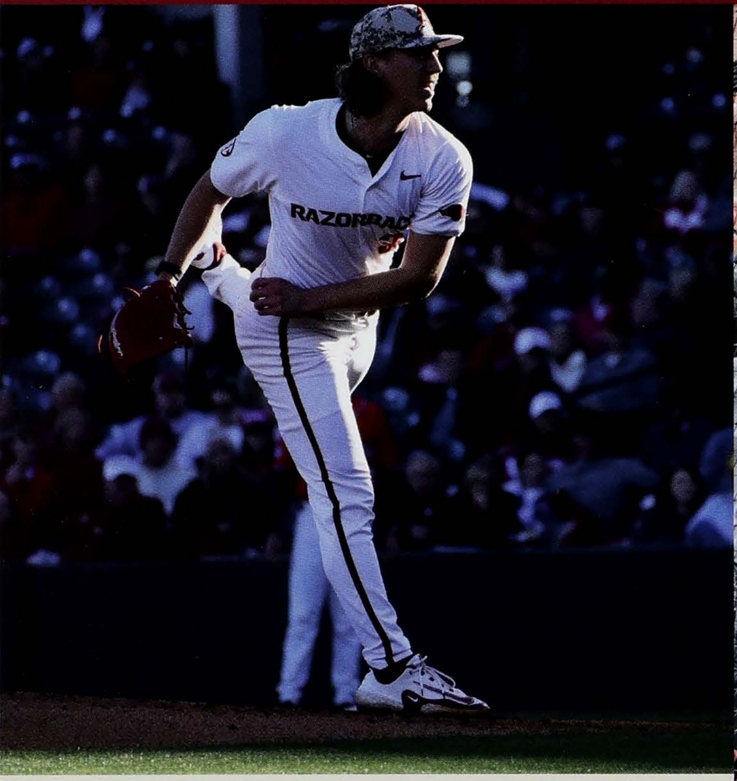
STRIKE OUT SEASON

RAZORBACK HISTORIC SEASON LED BY JUNIOR PITCHER HAGEN SMITH



All it took was 17 K's, 78 pitches and 59 strikes for standout junior pitcher Hagen Smith to tie the Arkansas program record, beat the Globe Life Field Single-Game Record, and earn himself SEC pitcher of the week honors.

The Razorbacks took on no.7 Oregon State at the Kubota College Baseball Series in Arlington, Tx on Feb. 23 and came out on top with a 5-4 win; Smith's pitching allowing the hogs to stay ahead.

The pitching in Arlington was only the beginning of a long stretch of success for the Razorback baseball pitching staff. On SEC opening weekend, the Hogs played Missouri, going 8-0 in the first game. Smith had 10 strikeouts.

Another feat from the Missouri series was a 1 hit shutout game from Brady Tygart and Will McEntire. They were the first pitching duo since 2019 to do so. As of Mar. 18 the Hogs are ranked at no.1 and as of April 3, the Hogs are on an 18 game winning streak at Baum Walker Stadium.

WHITE OUT, DUKE OUT.

MEN'S BASKTBALL DEFEATS DUKE 80-75 AT BUD WALTON ARENA.

November 30, 2023, at Bud Walton Area the Razorback Men's Basketball team defeated no. 7 - Duke during a non-conference matchup with a score of 67-53.

Sophomore, Trevon Brazille and Senior Khalif Battle turned the Blue Devils upside down. Brazille ends the game with 19 points and 11 rebounds and Battle ends with 21 points off the bench. With early defense the Razorbacks managed to limit Duke to only a 36% shooting-accuracy.

Despite the game itself - this matchup provided a ton of new record-breaking accomplishments. Head coach, Eric Musselman ends the evening with the 100th win of his career with the Razorbacks. Bud Walton Arena hits a new capacity record with 20,344 Hog fans. As well as the Duke Blue Devil's first ever visit to Bud Walton. To end the record-breaking evening off, Razorback fans rush to the court of Bud Walton Arena, giving the Razorback Athletics Department a fine of $100,000 to the SEC.

As stated in the SEC policy book as of the 2023 Spring Meetings - "for the safety of participants and spectators alike, at no time before, during or after a contest may spectators enter the competition area."

Since the Razorback fans rushed the court during a non-conference game the fine was deposited into the NCAA post-grad scholarship fund, however if the matchup was a conference game, then the fine would be deposited to the opposing team.

To add onto a record-breaking game, the Razorback fans clearly did not disappoint as their energy was electric - but nothing out of the ordinary.

AROUND THE WORLD

ARKANSAS WOMEN'S BASKETBALL BREAKS RECORDS IN EUROPE

From August 7th to August 13th, our Women's Basketball team took a quick trip abroad to Europe. During the 8-day trip, the lady Hogs played two different teams in Croatia and then one in Greece.

Despite the series of matches occurring during pre-season, the Women's Basketball team managed to finish 3 to 0.

To start off the tour, the Razorbacks enjoyed a morning with a guided tour of the ancient city of Split, Croatia as well as exploring Diocletian's Palace and downtown by the harbor. After the morning of exploring the team faced off against the InCroatia All Stars. The game ended with a final score of 124 to 12 (Razorbacks,) the Razorbacks ended up breaking an Arkansas Women's Basketball European Tour Record.

During the second leg of the tour, the Razorbacks faced off against ŽKK Budućnost Podgorica, from Montenero. The teams went head-to-head in a physical game, however, in the end the Razorbacks ended up winning with a score of 71 to 49.

For the final leg of the tour the team play against the University of Regina's Women's Basketball team from Canada. The Razorbacks ended the game with a 39-point lead, with a final score of 100 to 61. To accompany the triple victories the Razorbacks took a tour of Athens, Greece. During the tour the team toured the Parthenon, shopped and at around the Plaka, went to Vouliagmeni Beach and then ended their sightseeing by visiting the site of the first Modern-Day Olympics.

The Razorbacks returned to Fayetteville on Monday, August 14th to resume practice for the upcoming season.

AHEAD of the PACK

CROSS COUNTRY WINS SEC'S

With their third win in 4 years, the Arkansas Men's Cross Country team became SEC champions on Oct. 27, 2023 in Columbia, SC.

Standout runners include Patrick Kiprop who finished second in the 8,000 meter in 22 minutes, 31.6 seconds. Ben Shearer finished fifth with in 22 minutes, 50.2 seconds and Kirami Yego finished sixth with in 22 minutes, 54.8 seconds. There were 8 hogs in the top twenty five.

With an extensive history of cross country excellence at Arkansas. The Hogs did their best to carry on that legacy, coming in first ahead of 14 teams.

The Razorbacks scored a total of 38 points. Alabama came in second with 57 points and Tennessee followed with 59 points.

After the SEC championships, the Hogs headed to South Central Region to prepare for the NCAA championships where Patrick Kiprop defended his South Central Region title and the hogs advanced further into the postseason.

At NCAA's the Razorbacks placed 4th extending their dominance in the running field.

STANDOUT FRESHMAN SHARES THOUGHTS ON THE SEASON

A dream. Surreal. Special. All words freshman Paityn Noe would use to describe her first season as a Razorback.

The Iowa native won the Chile Pepper Festival 5k at Agri Park on Sept. 29, 2024 and went on to place 5th at the Southeastern Conference Championship to help the Razorbacks place 2nd.

"My freshman season was so fun and exciting as my first time competing at the Division I collegiate level," Noe said. "It was definitely a little scary, however, the good thing about cross country is that it is a team sport and you're not only running for yourself but also for your teammates."

Noe finished with a 19 minute, 43.7 second 6,000 meter at SEC's and a 16 minute, 09 second 5,000 meter at the Chile Pepper 5k. Coming into an elite program, Noe said she knew the team was next level, and it was one of her primary reasons for choosing the program.

"I knew there would be a group of girls that would push me to be my absolute best," Noe said. "We were with each other every day at practice and encouraged each other, which made it easy to go to the line with confidence in ourselves and our training."

With three more years of eligibility for Noe, the freshman standout has more to offer for Razorback Cross Country.

"I think that the start of the season was very successful," Noe said. "I still look back on the season as a great experience with many great opportunities that allowed me to grow as an athlete."

MORE THAN A GAME

RAZORBACK FOOTBALL PLAYER SHARES HOW HE GIVES BACK TO THE SURROUNING COMMUNITY

The Razorbacks football players inspire communities not only in the stadium but also outside the field. The athletes engage with community service work under Arkansas Edge, the official collective for the University of Arkansas, partnering with local charitable organizations.

Cameron Ball, junior defensive lineman from Atlanta, Georgia is no exception. Ball said he has worked for local communities such as food pantries and Boys & Girls Clubs.

Ball does not limit his engagement within the Fayetteville community. Starting in 2023, Ball hosts an annual youth football camp back in Georgia.

"I recently started that last year," Ball said. "And I plan to take further action with that by doing school drives and just mainly giving back to my community specifically."

While playing for the Razorbacks, his passion for committing to charitable work comes from his love for his hometown. Now, as a college football athlete, Ball said he believes he can be a difference maker in his community, which he just started to do.

"I'm from Atlanta, Georgia, so mainly in that community there's not a lot of people to make it this far where I'm at today and pouring back into the community," Ball said. "I just forgot about where I came from, so my job is to, the higher I go and the farther I excel, is to put some kind of positivity back in my community."

Un-Fore-Gettable Freshman Season

STANDOUT FRESHMAN ADDITION
BOOSTS RAZORBACK MEN'S GOLF

Freshman, Rex Hargrove is an essential addition to the 2023-2024 Razorback Men's Golf team.

Houston, Texas native – Hargrove has won several notorious tournaments. Namely in December 2022, Hargrove won the Jones Cup Junior Invitational Championship and carded rounds of 75-71-65 to win the 54-hole event by one stroke.

Later in the year, Hargrove was named on the 2023 THSCA Academic All-State second team.

Hargrove's first season as a Razorback has been nothing short of a hole-in-one. In November 2023, Hargrove was selected by the Junior Golf Association to be named on the Rolex All-American second team.

The Junior Rolex All-American honor is granted each year to 48 men and 48 women golfers. Players must have competed in a minimum of six Rolex All-American Junior Golf Association (AJGA) ranked tournaments. Then, to be eligible for the year-end Rolex Junior All-American honors the players must be a current AJGA member.

Hargrove is the second Razorback men's golfer to be featured on the Rolex All-American second team. John Dally II was also selected as a Rolex All-American second team addition.

In just a short year – Hargrove has become a highly sought after name in the golf industry. But most importantly, he has become a true part of our Razorback Family. Story by Madalyn Menke, Design by Allie Thome

John Daly

UA golfer turns wins 1995 British Open

John Daly in 1988

THEN

John Daly came to the University in 1984 after winning two high school state championships–one in Missouri and the other in Arkansas. He was the longest hitter on the team as a sophomore. Daly was selected as a SWC all-conference player in 1987 and earned all-American honors in 1988. While Daly never won a tournament at Arkansas, Coach Bill Woodley described Daly as the most talented golfer he has coached.

NOW

In 1991, Daly was an alternate for the PGA Tour and was asked two days before the Tour if he would play. He not only played, but won his first major tour by hitting 12 under par and was the longest hitter of the PGA Tour. Daly also won the British Open in 1995 in St. Andrews, Scotland. He has accumulated more than $1 million career earnings since beginning his professional golfing career in 1991.

STANDOUT FRESHMAN SUPPORTS HOGS

Freshman, Maria José Marin has become an essential player on the Razorback Women's Golf team. Despite only being in her first year, Marin was ranked No. 15 in the World Amateur Golf Rankings and even before her Razorback career, Marin ranked No. 33 in the World Amateur Golf Rankings and No. 22 in the Rolex Junior Association ranking.

Originally from Cali, Columbia - Marin is the first Latin American at the Augusta National Women's Amateur Tournament, and to proceed to make the cut for the prestigious Augusta National Tournament.

Because of the excellent plays at various tournaments - Marin has been named the SEC co-golfer of the week as of March 20th. This is the fourth time this season Marin has been the SEC's player of the week. She was first named as Freshman Athletes of the Week on three separate occasions and as the Co-Golfer of the Week for her fourth award.

Since being named in her fourth weekly honor. Marin has surpassed previous Razorback golfers Stacy Lewis' (2004 - 2005) and Maria Fassi's (2017-2018) records for the most weekly honors received in a season, since both Lewis and Fassi received three in their career.

Marin achieved her fourth SEC weekly title thanks to her second career runner-up finish at the Mountainview Collegiate Tournament. Finishing second at Mountainview with an 8-under 208 - Marin records her third top-five showing as a Razorback. Her 66 in the second round became a new career-low round and the sixth round she shot in the 60s during her time in Arkansas.

With her low score of 66, Marin finished at par or better in each of the three rounds, marking 17 out of 20 rounds, finishing at par or better during the season. Marin finished with 38 pars and 12 birdies, 2.75 par 3s average was tied for a tournament's best and her 3.93 par 4s average was tied for the lowest in the tournament field.

he Women's Razorback Golf team has been ranked as No. 8 and as No. 1 by CLIPPD. Because of this ranking, the golf team will take on the postseason SEC Championship at Pelican Golf Club in Belleair, Florida.

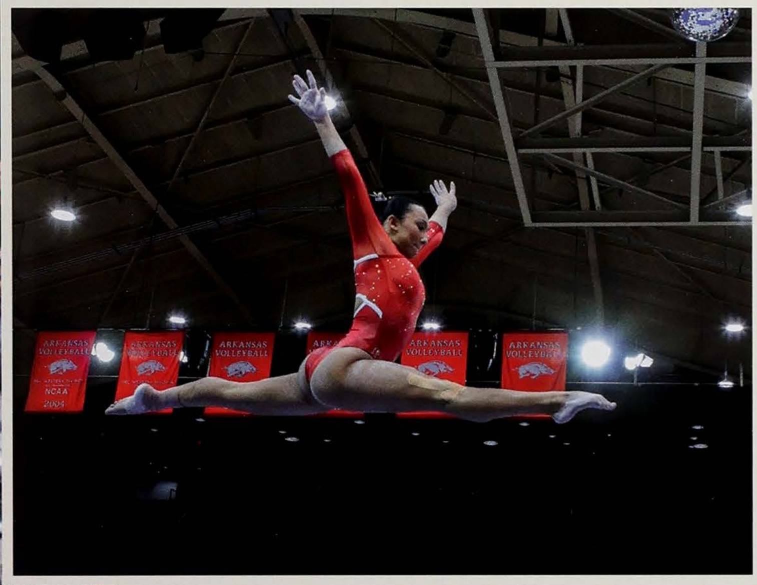
and that's an Arkansas Razorback... STUCK DISMOUNT!

With the rise of attention to female athletics across the country, the Gymbacks have attracted their fanbase within the local community. Anytime a Gymback sticks a landing, the home crowd responds with a chant. "Competing in front of a home crowd is so amazing, especially when we do sell out. It's the best feeling ever. The energy the crowd has is very contagious and they encourage us to just have fun and enjoy every single moment," Kalyxta Gamiao said.

gymBACKS, giveBACK.

A CONVERSATION WITH RAZORBACK GYMNAST, MADDIE JONES ABOUT GIVING BACK TO RAZORBACK NATION.



FISH CITY GRILL

What is the GiveBack and how did it get started?
The GiveBack started back during our 2022 season when two of our then seniors were inspired by Cameron Little donating money to Down Syndrome for every field goal he made. So we decided to do something similar, and for each month of our season, the team gives back and donates to different charities we are passionate about.

How do you and your fellow gymnasts pick which organizations to donate to?
We sit down as a team and talk about different causes that are special to ALL of our hearts and then narrow it down to three specific charities for our season.

What charities did you choose this year and why?
This year we chose: the Children's Hospital, Lifestyles Inc. and the NWA Women's Shelter. We chose these three because we wanted to do organizations close to us but also ones that connected our meet themes with the giveback. So for January we did the Children's hospital because all of our team has had family members in the children's hospitals and we always want to help our biggest supporters, kids, who can't always come to the meets. In February, in honor of our equality meet, we chose Lifestyles Inc. because we want to give kids and adults with disabilities the chance to live the same life as us and be able to participate in sports. So that one was huge for us and the inclusion of all. And for March we chose the NWA Women's Shelter in honor of our empowHER meet. We wanted to bring awareness to the women shelters and help continue to promote the impact women have on our society and be women that help other women feel empowered.

How does it feel to give back to the surrounding communities?
It's so special to give back to these communities because Hog nation supports us every single day and we couldn't do what we do without their support. So we truly love giving back in any way we can.

How do you feel being a Razorback has allowed you to help those in need?
Being a razorback has allowed me to use my platform to bring awareness to organizations and causes to an amazing community. It has also allowed me to take the time to get to know razorback fans who support us everyday and learn more about their stories.

Best in the Field

RAZORBACK SOCCER PLAYERS SHARE EXCITEMENT OVER NEW FIELD.

In 1992, the LadyBack Field, the first collegiate soccer field in the country, was constructed exclusively used for a women's team. Prior to the 2011 season, the facility underwent the extension and renovation for an enhancement.

Now, the field has improved even more by acquiring a brand-new field in the summer of 2023. The field was raised and resodded with Bermudagrass grown at Winstead Farms in Arlington, Tennessee. This farm also grew the grass for the field inside Donald W. Reynolds Razorback Stadium, according to the Arkansas Razorback website.

"Before they redid the field, it actually sloped about three feet from the Northwest corner to the Southwest corner which is pretty crazy," said Fuller Birch, the soccer team's Communication Liaison. "You could set the ball down in a particular spot and it would just roll."

Anna Podojil, a graduate student who plays for the Razorbacks, said the renovation took place in between May and August.

"It was very cool to practice on the field for the first time because it was such an exciting project," Podojil said. "We had to train at the recreation fields all summer, so it was awesome that it was ready in time for preseason."

The soccer team resumed practicing on the new grass for the first time on August 1, 2023.

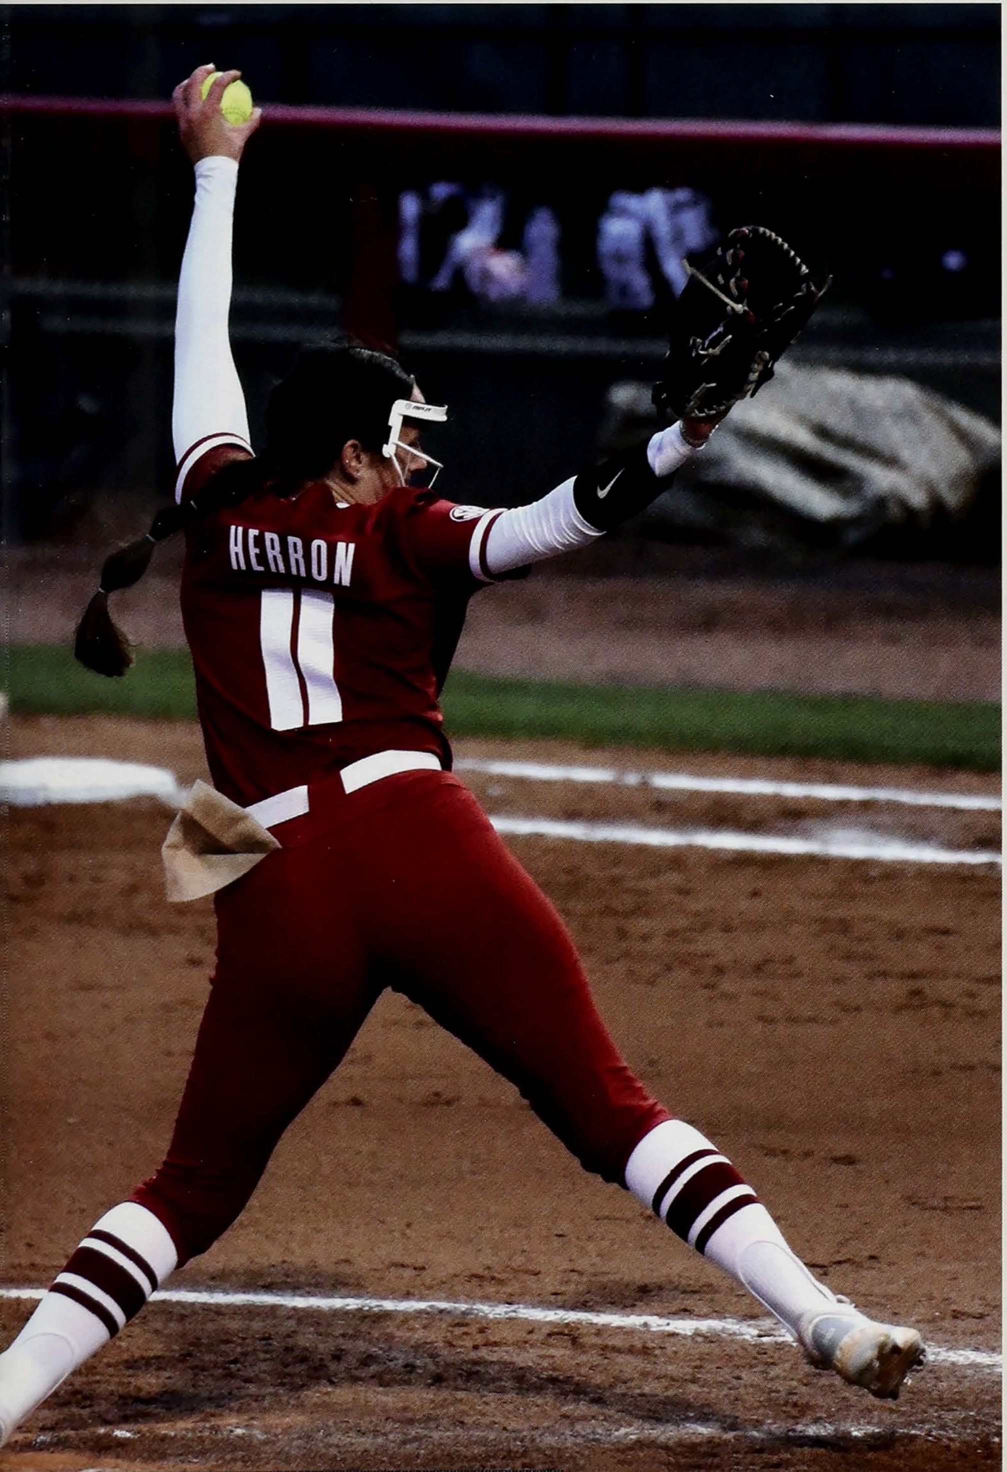
PITCH PERFECT

SOPHOMORE ROBYN HERRON SHARES HER POINT OF VIEW FROM HER PERFECT GAME

First career perfect game and the second in razorback history. 7 innings, 11 strikeouts. Previous hog was Mary Haff in 2022, continuing the dominance of the razorbacks in the circle.

With her first career perfect game and the second in Razorback Softball history, sophomore pitcher Robyn Herron led the Hogs to a 7-0 win over Illinois State on Feb. 24, 2024. Herron's perfect game included 7 innings with 11 strikeouts.

"I felt great throughout the game and like I had my best stuff," Herron said. "As I neared the end I didn't really get nervous until the last out and everyone started clapping."



In her freshman season, the Tampa, Fla. native appeared 24 times with 13 starts. In the off season, the Razorback pitching squad put in hours to improve on the mound.

"I think now having the experience in high pressure environments is a great asset," Herron said. "It's going to be a learning process every weekend but I have confidence that we'll succeed and progress throughout the season."

The Hogs began their stretch of home games going 4-1. In the game against the Redbirds, the Razorbacks scored 4 runs in the 1st, 1 run in the 2nd, 2 in the 3rd inning and invoked run rule in the 7th.

"They [her teammates] just had my back and kept their focus with making good defensive plays," Herron said. "They definitely kept me in it and I appreciate them so much for it."

Herron and the rest of the pitching staff contribute their early on success to high stakes games that allow them to continue dominating in the circle.

"I did not have the goal to pitch a perfect game," Herron said. "but when it neared the end, I was determined to finish it."

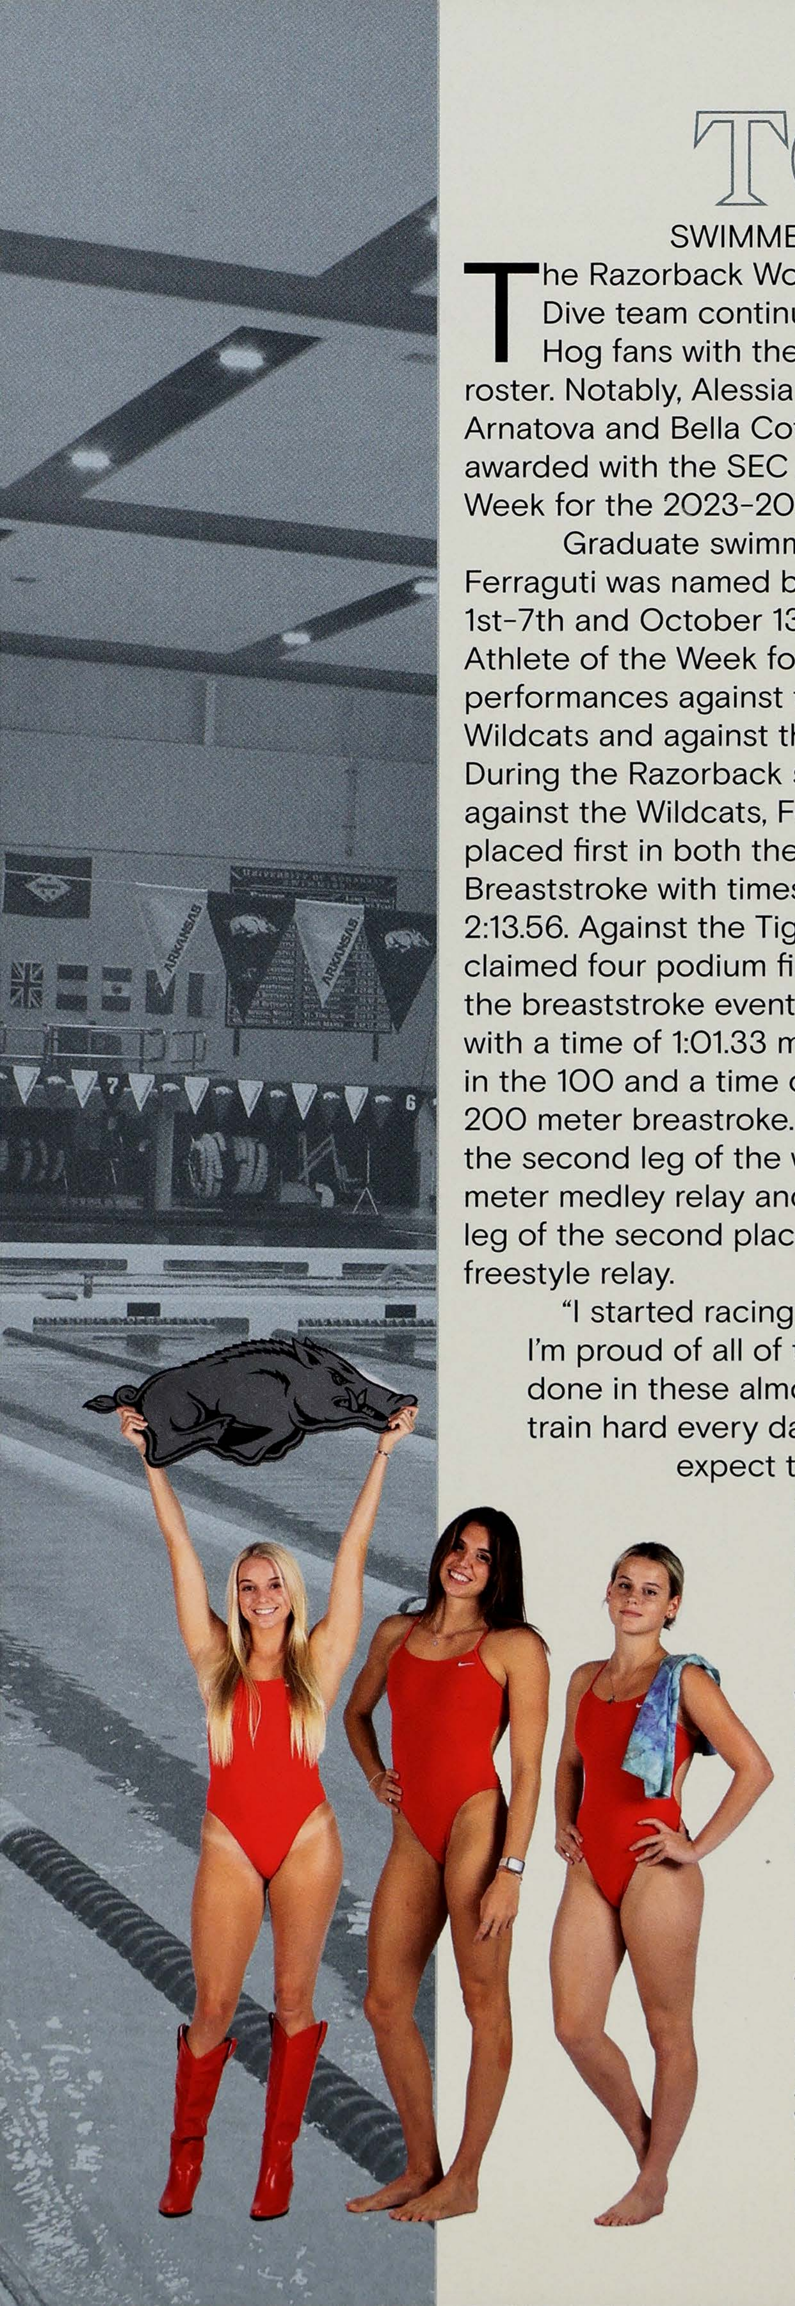
TOP HOGS

SWIMMERS AND DIVER EARN SEC WEEKLY HONORS



The Razorback Women's Swim and Dive team continues to impress Hog fans with their amazing roster. Notably, Alessia Ferraguti, Anna Arnatova and Bella Cothern each are awarded with the SEC Athlete of the Week for the 2023-2024 season.

Graduate swimmer Alessia Ferraguti was named both October 1st-7th and October 13th- 19th's SEC Athlete of the Week for her amazing performances against the Kentucky Wildcats and against the LSU Tigers. During the Razorback season opening against the Wildcats, Ferraguti placed first in both the 100 and 200 Breaststroke with times of 1:01.31 and 2:13.56. Against the Tigers, Ferraguti claimed four podium finishes. During the breaststroke events, she finished with a time of 1:01.33 meter breastroke in the 100 and a time of 2:12.93 in the 200 meter breaststroke. She also swam the second leg of the winning 200 meter medley relay and the leadoff leg of the second place 400-meter freestyle relay.

"I started racing when I was 7. I'm proud of all of the work I've done in these almost two years, I train hard every day, but I didn't expect to improve so fast." Ferraguti said. "My goals for the rest of this year are to keep going with what I'm doing now and to try and make the national team to represent Italy."

Freshman Diver, Anna Arnatova was named January 21-27th's SEC Athlete of the Week. During the Arkansas Diving Classic – Arnatova possessed NCAA qualifying scores of 330.30 on the 1-meter springboard and 342.60 on the 3-meter springboard.

"I have been competing for a long time – since I was about 6-7 years old. I plan to develop in my sports career, so I decided to combine sports and University [to do so.]" Arnatova said.

Senior swimmer Bella Cothern is named October 29th – November 4th's SEC Women's Co-Swimmer of the week for her contribution pair of wins in the 50 and 100 Freestyle during the matchup against Stanford.

"Over the last couple of years, I have realized that your coaches can only push you so far and ultimately you are your own coach too, you control how hard you push yourself and I've started to push myself like the elite athlete I want to be." Cothern said.

With three amazing members of the team that doesn't decrease the sense of unity between each member of the Swim and Dive team. "My favorite part of this team is the fact that I get to have about 30 best friends. We don't have ages or grades; we are close no matter the age gap." Cothern said.

The 'SEC Athlete of the Week' award is given to athletes who have shown exemplary performance in their field. For our three swim and dive athletes they each have shown what it means to be a Razorback. "If you would've told me three years ago that I would've been named SEC athlete of the week I would've laughed at you. But I knew when I swam those times against Stanford, I had a chance." Cothern said. The growth each of these athletes have shown further proves that hard work and determination in their craft can and will pay off in the end.

KEY LARGO HOGS

While on training trip, the Hogs competed in the Ornage Bowl Classic at the Jacobs Aquatic Centerin Key Largo, Fla. before they began their training trip in the Keys. The meet featured the Hogs, Colby College, the College of the Florida Keys, and Trinity College. "I thought the Orange Bowl classic was a unique opportunity for us to not only race in a different pool length," sophomore Delaney Harrison said. "but also be able to swim with some teams that are in different NCAA divisions; all while competing outdoors which is a rarity."

Ladies Place 3rd

On October 29 and 30, the Lady Razorback swim team competed in the Southwest Conference Swimming and Diving Relays in Houston, Texas.

Arkansas placed third at the conference, led by first place Texas and second place Houston. Texas A & M, Texas Christian, Southern Methodist and Rice also competed.

The Lady Razorbacks won two events at the conference meet: the 300 yard butterfly, entered by Julie Hindson, Karen Morrison and Cheryl McArton, and the 400 yard freestyle entered by McArton, Hindson, Carrie Hilgeson and Nancy Duncan. The team eventually finished second in three events and third in seven events.

PLAYIN' SINGLE

MENS TENNIS HOSTS SINGLES NIGHT IN HONOR OF VALENTINES DAY, STUDENTS INVITED TO WEAR RED.

The Razorback men's tennis stirred up Valentine's Day by turning the match against Drake to a unique event titled "Singles Night." The event took place on Feb. 14 from 6 p.m. at Billingsley Tennis Center.

"The event started with some promotional photos with a few of the players with roses and chocolates to post socials," said Tyler Czock, assistant graduate who oversaw the marketing and promotion for the event.

Czock said he decorated the courtside tables with roses and candy and played more "love songs" between the doubles and singles sets, making it "the Valentine's Day environment."

"The idea came up through my coworker and I thinking of fun ideas to attract fans to matches," Czock said. "'Singles Night' was a play on words with Tennis Singles play, and it felt like a great fit for the event."

With the help of "Razor Racquets," the group of volunteers at the team, the event attracted some girls in sororities and brought their friends to watch the match, Czock said.

The Razorbacks (6-2) defeated Drake (6-3) with outstanding performances from doubles. "Singles Night" on Valentine's Day turned to be the day of "doubles," featuring great collaborations by the Razorback doubles partners.

BILLINGSLY TENNIS FACILITY

The George M. Billingsly Tennis center opened in 2008 as a 2.8 B dollar expansion and renovation to the previous tennis facilities. The renovation connected the indoor and outdoor facilities and added new locker rooms, offices, and an indoor club. The outdoor court features seating between the two sets of courts allowing fans to view the surrounding matches. It also included new score boards for individual courts and a large scoreboard for the outdoor courts. Information provided by Razorback Athletics.

HOME AWAY FROM HOME

SENIOR FROM KOMARNO, SLOVAKIA SHARES HER EXPERIENCE AS A RAZORBACK

With the help of senior Lenka Stara, the no.51 Arkansas Women's Tennis team defeated the no.15 South Carolina. Stara claims that the support of her teammates, coaches and support staff help her playing so far from home.

"Fayetteville has become my second home and I would never change it for anything else," Stara said.

The senior originates from Komarno, Slovakia and is grateful for the opportunities brought on by playing for a flagship school.

"I think it's a privilege to represent Razorback Nation," Stara said. "It [the flagship school] brings so many opportunities for athletes to help them get to better and achieve their athletic and personal goals."

For Stara, scheduling her days in advance allows her to reach those goals.

"For athletics I just wanted to help the team with always getting one point from my singles and doubles," Stara said. "Personally I would say I wanted to get to know more about the coaching side while doing my internship"

When asked about her favorite part of being a Hog, Stara said, "I love the people that take care of us but also the people we get to play in front of. But my favorite part is to play next to my teammates and see them fight for each other every single day."

RACING RAZORBACKS

MEN'S TRACK AND FIELD WINS SECS AT HOME

With an at home victory, the Arkansas Men's Track and Field team continued their SEC championship reign. The Hogs finished the meet with 163 points to claim their 5th consecutive win.

The Hogs had representation in every event and scored in 16 out of 17 events. The closest team to the Razorbacks was the University of Florida with 106 points.

Standout Razorbacks include Heptathlon athletes who went 1-2-3-5, Yariel Soto Torrado, Marcus Weaver, Daniel Spejcher and Gabriel Emmanuel specifically. This finish earned the Razorbacks 28 points.

Freshman Peter Maru won the men's 3,000 meter with a meet record of 7:47.26 and the men's 5,000 meter with a 13:31.11. Senior Romaine Beckford made a clearance of 2.25 m in the men's high jump to take first.

The Razorbacks competed in front of 2,379 home fans and continued to show their dominance across the Track and Field events. Up next for the Razorbacks is the NCAA Indoor Tournament where the Razorbacks will defend their national title.

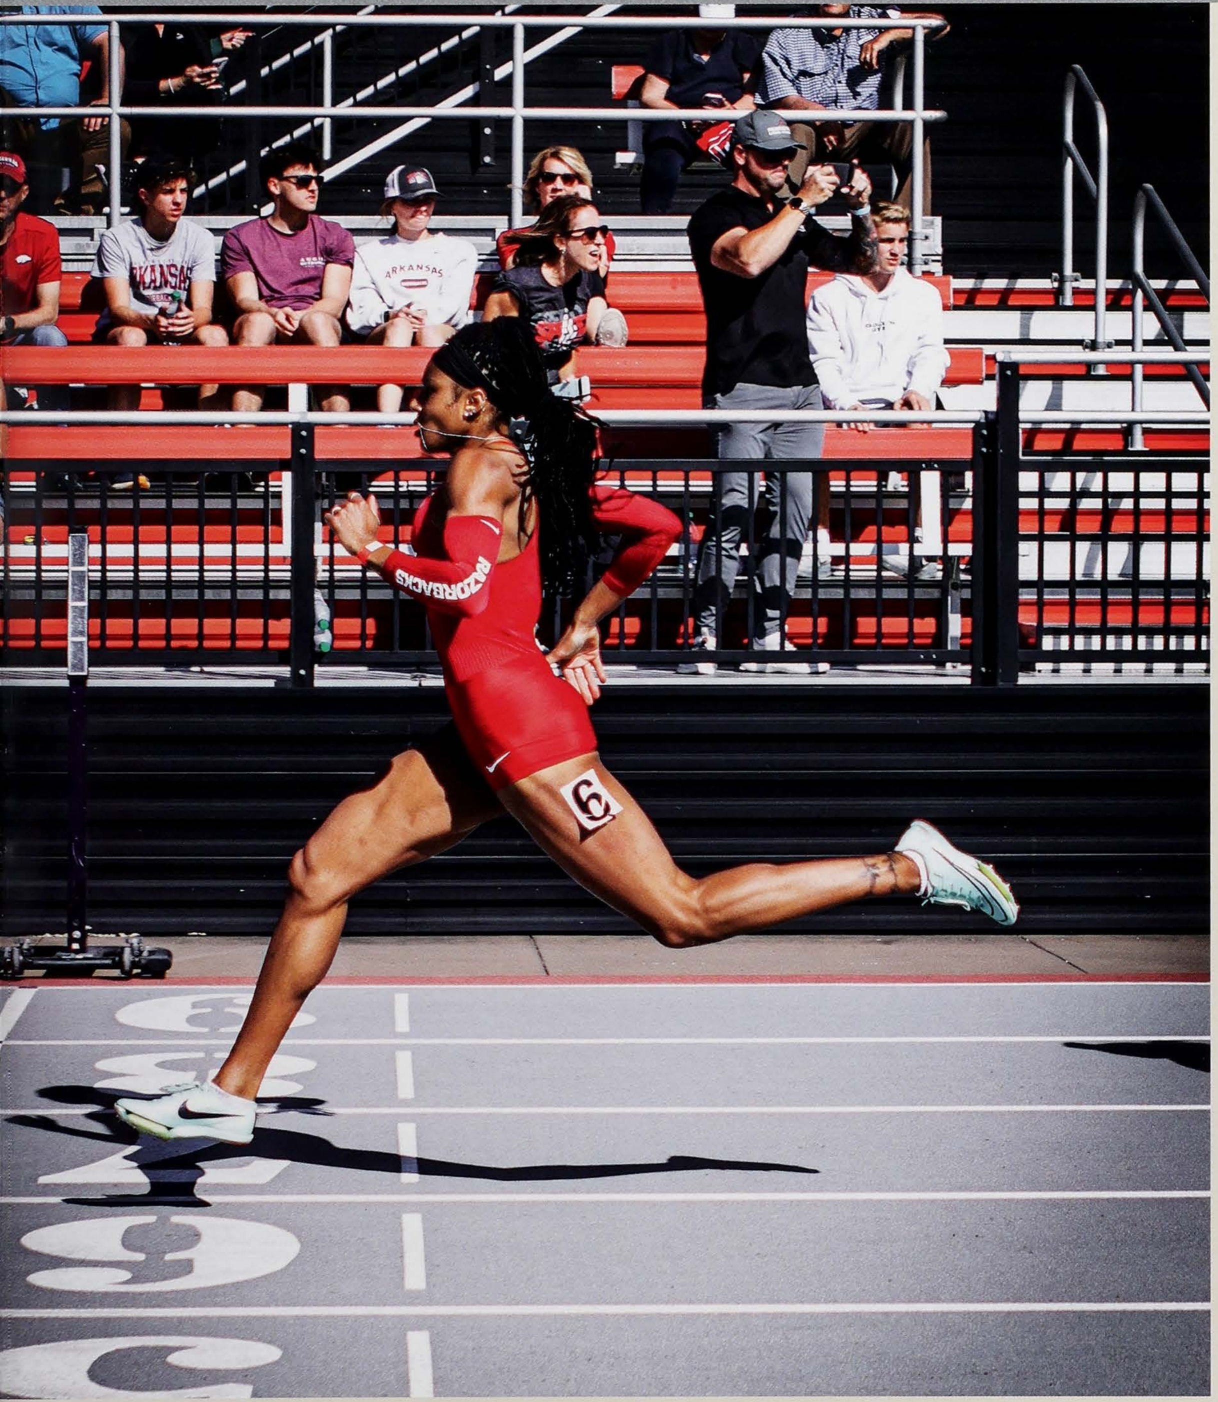
HOGS SWEEP THE 400 METER AT SECS WITH ANNING IN FIRST, SETTING THE PACE FOR POSTSEASON



Continuing their SEC Cross Country dominance, the Women's Track and Field team claimed their 10th consecutive title at the Randal Tyson Track Center in Fayetteville, Ark.. This is Head Coach Chris Johnson's first win since accepting the head coach mantle in June of 2023.

The hogs scored in 14 out of 15 events and went 1, 2, 3, 4 and 7 in the 400 meter with standout Amber Anning in first.

"I felt really good, It was a sense of relief more than anything," Anning said. "I had the 200 final right after so I didn't have any time to celebrate or reflect on my performance but I was very proud of my achievement and the execution of the race."

Anning is a transfer from Louisiana State University with 5-time First-team All-American and has a bronze medal in the 4 x 400 meter at the World Athletics Championships, she said she has great pride and was honored to represent the hogs.

"The atmosphere in the track was amazing and it was so nice to see so many razorback fans out supporting us in the stands," Anning said. "I definitely felt the home advantage as we practice on this track all the time so it allowed me to focus on the race plan and staying confident in my abilities."

With the remaining indoor season, Anning is excited for the upcoming outdoor season.

"This is the fastest I have ever run consistently indoors, so it bodes well for outdoors," Anning said. "I think the main important thing is to stay disciplined with my daily routine and to take care of the small things. Have the bigger goal in mind, but focus on the week ahead and what I want to accomplish race by race."

RAZORBACK VOLLEYBALL PLAYERS DESCRIBE THEIR RECORD-SETTING SEASON

With the Razorback volleyball team starting the season off with strong opponents like the No.1 team from Wisconsin, the student attendance for the games increased. The matchups with high-ranked teams brought excitement to not only the players but also to the student supporters. The anticipated games set the volleyball team to break its record of attendance in the student section at Barnhill Arena.

Jillian Gillen, a graduate student and outside hitter, reminisced about the team's rebuilding process in the past years. She said even though the team has kept improving even during COVID, there were not a lot of attendances.

Gillen said the No.1 team in the nation coming this year was Wisconsin.

"I think people want to see that great matchup," she said. "It's a top twenty-five matchup, so we were able to get a lot of people in that way, which was cool because it was during some school nights."

Taylor Head, senior and outside hitter, said she believes the impact the team is making on the court and in the ranking attribute to the student attendance increase.

"We're really giving people a show," Head said. "In the previous years that I've been here, we haven't been to the caliber of what we are this year, so I think people are probably wanting to come cheer on a winning Razorback team."

A senior volleyball student manager Kara Watson said she thinks the increase is because of the notable names in the team. She said there are Jill Gill, Taylor Head, Courtney Jackson and Hannah Hogue, who became the Southeastern Conference's Setter of the Week for two weeks in a row.

The players and marketing team spread promotions of their games by handing out flyers around campus, throwing out t-shirts at a soccer game, and bringing donuts to the band practices. They initiated signature Saturdays or Sundays on their game days to get involved with the community and connect with fans.

"All the kids get to come through the line, and we get to talk to them, which I think really helps us build that this is a sport where you can actually get really close to the people that you're coming to watch," Gillen said.

Watson said she believes the band is the biggest hype team. Gillen recounted the band's engagements.

"They're always giving people a hard time on the other team, and they're so good at what they do. It's freaking awesome," Gillen said. "They make it easy for people who are students who've never been to a volleyball game to get really involved in it really quickly."

Because of the matchup, the promotions and the band, students filled the stands at the games.

"I don't think a lot of people know how fun volleyball is and how easy it is to get into," Gillen said. "I'm glad that we're able to spread that and have those people come in and talk about it."

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

Dear readers of the Razorback Yearbook,

As we near the end of the 153th year of spring classes at the University of Arkansas, it is with both nostalgia and excitement that I write this letter as the editor-in-chief of this publication. This yearbook is not just a collection of photos; it is a representation of all the major milestones of the 2023-2024 academic year. This book is intended to replicate the look of the campus, in both color scheme and feeling. In these pages, you will find our best attempt to capture all of the pieces of Fayetteville and the campus that make the University of Arkansas the blueprint for the state. Our school has many traditions, and each are highlighted in this edition. From the sporting events to the student portraits, the staff and I have made strides to ensure that we feature as many students and as many moments as we can.

Four years ago, I came to the University of Arkansas during the peak of the covid pandemic. Most of my classes were virtual so in order to cure my boredom I decided to join the yearbook. I eventually went from designer to design editor to now editor-in-chief. What was originally just a way to get involved in something on campus turned into my biggest creative outlet. Being the editor has allowed me to experience in many facets such as photography, graphic design, and social media- all things that I had not had the opportunity to do during my regular classwork. I can genuinely say that this has been one of my favorite jobs I have ever had.

I want to extend my heartfelt gratitude to the yearbook team for their hard work in bringing this publication to life. Sarah, thank you for somehow perfectly capturing the photo I have in my head even if I gave you the vaguest description of my vision. Madalyn, a million thanks for all the projects you picked up and were willing to help complete. Your organizational skills were exactly what my brain needed. Diana, thank you for your willingness to try new things. The website looks amazing all because of your hard work. Allie, these are the best sports pages we have ever had. Your design skills and your determination to get the Athletic Department to respond to your emails certainly show on the page! Kana, thank you for the effort you put into each piece of copy. Ellie, thank you for designing this book with me. It looks amazing, and I know yours will be even better!

Finally, thank you to the University of Arkansas for giving me some of the best four years of my life. The people I have met and the experiences I have lived has forever shaped who I am.

With warmest regards,
Hannah Cunningham
